Farm-City Banquet Highlights Exchangees, Agricultural Honorees

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

READING (Berks Co.) — About 400 friends of Berks County agriculture attended the 17th annual Berks County Farm-City Banquet late last week here at the Riveredge Restaurant.

At the banquet, members of this year's Farm-City exchange spoke about their experiences.

In addition, several individuals were honored by the Berks County Farm-City Council for their work in promoting agriculture in the county.

Farm-City Exchangees

To Hilda Fisher, looking back on the way things used to be allows her to marvel about the present.

As this year's Berks County Farm-City Day exchangee, Fisher spoke about the wonders of modernized pork processing, saw splitting, stuffing, and today's stainless-steel smokehouse.

Fisher said the new technologies at work at Hatfield Quality Meats in Hatfield were "quite a difference from our smokehouse. (Hatfield's were) all stainless steel and computerized-controlled."

And how delicious the products are. Fisher wonders at how her own parents would have delighted at their taste, she said.

Hilda, with husband Frank, changed places for a day with Steve Clemens, from Hatfield's leadership, education, assessment, and development program.

Clemens visited the Fisher family, known for their work on agriculture and historical issues in the community.

Fisher remembers the scrapple processing in the Hatfield plant. The vats of boiling scrapple brought back memories of Pennsylvania has been awarded both Bovine Tuberculosis-Free status and Pseudorabies-Free status in the year 2000. The TB award came earlier this year and the pseudorabies was announced this week by Pennsylvania Ag Secretary Samuel Hayes Jr. In the photo from left, Dr. Amy Nestleroth, Dr. John Enck, Sec. Hayes, Dr. Lynne Siegfried, and Dr. Philip DeBok.

Pa. Earns 'Pseudorabies-Free' Status

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — On Tuesday, Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Samuel E. Hayes Jr. announced that Pennsylvania has received "Pseudorabies-Free State" certification from the USDA.

Accepting the certificate, Hayes said, "This has been a great year for animal health in Pennsylvania. We have been awarded both 'Bovine Tuberculosis-Free Status' in our dairy industry and 'Pseudorabies-Free Status' in our swine industry. These are two very important achievements for Pennsylvania agriculture."

Hayes commended the state Department of Agriculture, the

LITTER AMENDMENT

New Poultry Guard™ Litter Amendment is a unique activated clay that delivers consistent ammonia control without the handling inconvenience associated with other poultry litter treatments.

Unlike these other treatments, Poultry Guard Litter Amendment is easy and convenient to apply and needs no incorporation or activation Fewer application variables mean more consistent performance. In addition, Poultry Guard can be applied up to five days before bird set, whenever it's convenient for the grower.

Using Poultry Guard Litter Amendment Is As Simple As...

Apply
Simply spread over poultry litter.
- No incorporation
- No moisture activation
- No complicated instructions for heating and ventilation in conjunction with application

Bird Set
Poultry Guard can be applied when it's most convenient, up to five days before bird set.
- No application timing headaches between clean out and bird set
- No last minute application after equipment has been lowered

Control Ammonia
Poultry Guard will deliver immediate and long-term ammonia control and give birds a healthier growing environment.
- No more dangerously high levels of ammonia to stunt growth

You be the judge! We are confident this litter amendment will improve your poultry and your profits.

ATLANTA, GA.
Report Supplied By USDA

DELMARVA BROILER/FRYER MARKET. FEDERAL-STATE

Movement of ready to cook whole birds was slowing as buyers often limited receipts to an "as needed basis" while showing increased interest in other items more typical of the upcoming thanksgiving holiday. Offerings were adequate and in fairly good balance on the 3.0 and 3.5 pound sizes, ample on the larger. Live supplies were about moderate; weights were mostly desirable to heavy. Processing schedules were light to moderate. Less than truckloT asking prices were unchanged at 55 to 69 cents. Trade sentiment was steady. Parts were at least adequate. ACTUAL SLAUGHTER WEEK ENDING 113¼000 WAS 11,364,334 5.11 LBS.

ATLANTA, GA.
Report Supplied By USDA

Trucklot buying activity was seasonally light and unaggressive as dealers continued to work on a hand-to-mouth basis and limit floorstocks to most immediate needs. Supplies of boneless-skinless breasts were ample and discounted, and bone-in breasts were usually available. Wings were generally adequate and dark meat items, particularly leg quarters, were more than sufficient for current call. Movement into retail and distributive channels was no better than fair. The market tone was cautiously steady to instances weak on boneless-skinless breasts, no better than steady on the balance. Except for gizzards, which were seeing increasing interest entering the holiday period.

Not a Seed of Doubt.

Through exhaustive testing and development on over 200 working farms in the Northeast and Mid-Atlantic, Agway's agronomic experts have removed the doubt from choosing seed corn hybrids. All Agway hybrids have been tested for success on farms just like yours, capitalizing on the latest genetic advancements and production practices.

For example: AG5496 features natural corn borer tolerance, fast dry-down, vigorous early growth and superior late season plant intactness. AG6399Bt contains the YieldGard® gene for locations where potential for European corn borer damage is high. It's an excellent choice for early planting, conservation tillage and easy harvesting.

So plant success, not doubt. Give us a call today for more information on how we can provide practical, proven seed solutions that help turn your toughest growing challenges into profitable results.

The Old Farmer's Almanac This Week With

ST. HILDA, NOVEMBER 18

NO SUN—NO MOON!

No morn, no noon; no dawn, no dusk, no proper time of day. No sky, no earthly view, no distance looking blue. No road, no street, no "t'other side the way." No end to any row, no indication where the crescents go. No top to any steeple, no recognitions of familiar people. No courtesies for showing 'em. No knowing 'em! No travelling at all, no locomotion. No inkling of the way, no notion. "No go" by land or ocean. No mail, no post, no news from any foreign coast. No park, no ring, no afternoon gentility. No company, no nobility. No warmth, no cheerfulness, no healthful ease. No comfortable feel in any member.

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Salt is heavier than pepper, so if you can't tell which shaker is which, check the weights.

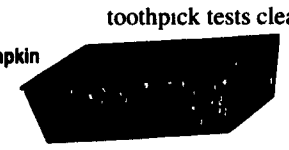
PUMPKIN BREAD

3 cups flour, sifted
3 cups sugar
2 teaspoons baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon nutmeg
pinch of ground cloves
3 large eggs
1 cup canola, corn, or safflower oil
2/3 cup water
1 can (16 ounces) pumpkin

Preheat oven to 350°F. Sift the dry ingredients together. Beat the eggs, oil, water, and pumpkin until blended. Add the dry mixture, and stir until just blended. Pour into two greased loaf pans. Bake for about 1 hour, or until a toothpick tests clean.



Makes 2 loaves.

The Old Farmer's WEATHER PROVERBS

If there be ice in November that will bear a duck, there will be nothing thereafter but sleet and muck.

If the hair of a horse grows long early, expect a hard winter.

The American Flag

I am the American flag, listen to me and I'll tell you my story. My colors are red, white and blue. I have a field of fifty stars and thirteen stripes. I am also known as "The Stars and Stripes" and "Old Glory." I am honored to be in all public places. I go to schools where the children pledge allegiance to me. I attend all sporting events and stand proud and fly high as they sing my song "The Star Spangled Banner." I am honored when I go by in a parade and my people salute me.

Yes, I am the American flag. I served under forty some presidents. I was in peace and war. I was at the battle of Bunker Hill and Valley Forge where I saw the soldiers starve and freeze to death. I was with General Washington as he crossed the Delaware. I was in the Civil War where I saw father and son, brother and brother fight against each other to save the Union. I was there when they freed the slaves. I was at Gettysburg with President Lincoln, where in a few minutes he gave the most famous speech ever heard "The Gettysburg Address." I went along to the trenches in France in World War I, the beaches of Normandy in World War II, the day which lives in infamy at Pearl Harbor, the sands of Iwo Jima, where a few soldiers planted me in the sand to fly high with honor over them. I was in many wars and places with the people of my country. The farthest distance I have traveled is to the moon where I'm also flying high to honor my country.

I am the American flag. I stand for freedom, but freedom has its price. Freedom doesn't prevail without tyranny. I was disgraced many a time. I was spit on, stepped on, shot at and burned. I saw racism and other violence in my country, but I have overcome, for I fly over America the greatest country there is. A land of freedom, liberty, opportunities, a place to dream and live your dreams, a land of bounteous blessings, a land of milk and honey. A land to worship your Lord and Master. If we would just open our eyes and hearts and believe in God and ourselves we could move mountains. What a great country I stand for. I'm proud of my patriots. May they be proud of me!

I am the American flag. I am at the boot camp where the morning reveille is played. I am the cover over the casket when one of my servicemen who have served their country reach their final resting place. And I'll fly high with honor while taps are played for those who have served their country and have paid the price. They gave their all so that I may fly free.

Yes, I am the American flag. May I long wave over the land of the free and the home of the brave.

God Bless my Country! God Bless America! Long may She live!

Anna Landis Herndon

To Understand Deer Stand Safety

In an effort to outsmart the elusive white tail deer, more and more Pennsylvania hunters are taking to the trees to bag their quarry, according to Earl Robbins, Tioga County extension agent.

Hunters may climb existing limbs or use ladders, steps, or commercial climbers to reach perches 10 to 15 feet off the forest floor.

Tree stands have been very popular with hunters in archery season, and now more hunters are using them during rifle season.

Hunting from tree stands may be more productive, but using them may be dangerous. One out of every three tree stand users will eventually fall out of a tree stand. Nationwide, about 10 hunters every year are killed in falls from tree stands, while many others suffer temporary or permanent injury.

Human error is the main reason for tree stand accidents. People climb into trees or stands when conditions are wet, icy, or windy. They also fall asleep and fall out of the tree or become excited when a deer appears and take one step too far.

To Be Safe In Tree Stands

Earl Robbins, Tioga County extension agent, recommends hunters follow these safety tips when using tree stands:

- Do not use weathered, homemade tree stands. These stands often deteriorate quickly and often are unsafe even when newly installed.
- Wear a safety belt or harness. These products fit under both arms and are attached to the tree and the hunter. If the stand breaks or slips, the hunter remains in position.
- Always unload firearms before pulling them up into or lowering them from the tree stand.
- Choose an obviously healthy tree that can support the additional weight. Make sure the tree has no dead branches or fungal growths. Mushrooms or fungi on trees can be a sign of ill health.
- When climbing up or down, always ensure that your hands and feet are secure at three points of contact before moving the fourth point.
- Closely follow manufacturer's directions when using commercial tree stands.

Remember, hunters may not place a tree stand in any tree of their choice. You need to ask the owner first. There is a $100 fine plus damage costs for placing a tree stand on public or private property without permission.

To Set Hunter Safety Example

If you are taking a young person hunting this year, make sure they understand the importance of hunting safety rules.

Young people handling firearms need to develop some important habits, according to Earl Robbins, Tioga County extension agent. We can instill these habits by instructing them and, more importantly, by setting an example.

These youth need role models who practice safe hunting skills. Make sure firearms are in good working order and barrels and chambers are free of obstructions. Make sure every member of the group wears a combined minimum of 250 square inches of hunter orange on the head, chest, and back.

Assume every firearm is loaded. When you pick up a gun, the first thing you should do is check it for ammunition. When you pass a firearm to someone else, leave the action open so there is no chance of it firing. Unload guns and leave actions open when transporting them.

Do not shoot until you are absolutely sure of your target. Shooting at a sound or an undefined shape is inviting tragedy.

WHAT WILL YOU LEAVE ME?

Background Scripture:
1 Kings 2:1-4; 3:1-15; 1 Chronicles 29:22-25; 2 Chronicles 1:1-13.

Devotional Reading:
Psalms 119:101-9.

In David's life, there came the time that comes to all of us. After a reign of 40 years, the man whom God annointed to be king over Israel was facing the hour of death. He had built up a strong kingdom and accumulated much wealth.

We can imagine that some of David's heirs were already wondering what their rich and powerful father would leave to them. One of David's sons, Abiathar, had already tried a power play to seize the throne for himself, a ploy which Solomon's mother, Bathsheba, had quashed.

David, however, had something even more important to give Solomon than riches and power — the essence of what his father had learned over the years. David charged his son: "Be strong and show yourself a man, and keep the charge of the Lord your God, walking in his ways and keeping his statutes, his commandments, his ordinances, and his testimonies . . . that you may prosper in all that you do wherever you turn that the Lord may establish his word which he spoke concerning me, 'If you sons take heed to their way, to walk before me in faithfulness with all their heart and with all their soul, there shall not fail you a man on the throne of Israel'" (1 Kings 2:1-4).

It seems sad to me that, although we pass on to our children and the coming generations much in the way of material wealth, we are much less likely to pass on to them what we have learned. Perhaps that is because, despite the longevity of our lives, we think that we haven't learned all that much. Or perhaps we do not value spiritual advice as much as material goods.

I wish that I could leave each of my children with a nest egg amount that would provide them with help in buying a house. The chances for that are not very great, but I can actually leave them something more important: what I have learned.

Walking In His Ways

David's advice to his son is simple and straightforward: "Be strong and show yourself a man, and keep the charge of the Lord your God, walking in his ways and keeping his statutes, his commandments, his ordinances, and his testimonies, as it is written in the law of Moses, that you may prosper in all that you do and wherever you turn, that the Lord may establish his word which he spoke concerning me, saying, 'If your sons take heed to their way, to walk before me in faithfulness with all their heart and with all their soul, there shall not fail you a man on the throne of Israel'" (2:2-4).

What had David learned from which Solomon, his son, might profit? David had personally experienced the goodness of God who permitted him to prosper and grow as King of Israel when he kept the charge of God and walked in his ways. If you go with God, what he is saying, and follow his lead, you cannot fail as King of Israel.

Unspoken, but at least implied, is the fact that although David had also learned much through success, he had also learned through failure, with which he had much experience also. When he arrogantly abused his power and sinned with Bathsheba, plotting for the demise of Uriah, her husband, David had experienced the judgment as well as the forgiveness of God. In the midst of all his terrible travail with his son Absalom, he had found God's presence the only means of living through this terrible time.

So now David died and "slept with his fathers" and Solomon at last succeeded to the throne, although not without some struggle. Then, while at Gibeon, a place of worship, he had a dream in which God came to him and asked, "Ask what I shall give you?" (3:5). Solomon replies by first thanking and praising God for his "great and steadfast love to thy servant David, my father."

He also thanks the Lord for putting him on his father's throne. If Solomon's words were sincere, this is a humble prayer: ". . . thou hast made thy servant king in place of David my father, although I am but a little child; I do not know how to go out or come in. And thy servant is in the midst of thy people whom thou hast chosen, a great people, that cannot be numbered or counted for multitude" (3:7,8). (Later in his life, Solomon would be arrogant, not humble, but I take his words here at face value.)

Bequeathing Wisdom

It is in this continuing state of humility that Solomon now answers God's request to "Ask what I shall give to you."

"Give thy servant, therefore," he prays, "an understanding mind to govern thy people, that I may discern between good and evil; for who is able to govern this thy great people?" (3:9).

God is favorably impressed with Solomon's attitude and responds, telling him that because he asked nothing for himself, "long life or riches or the life of your enemies," he will give him what he asks for, "a wise and discerning mind," unequaled by anyone who lived before him or will come after him. Apparently, Solomon was thus gifted and his enduring reputation is that of the "wisdom of Solomon" — although as the latter parts of his story will show, he didn't always exercise that wisdom.

The story of Solomon's ascension to the throne also tells us something more about what God bequeaths to his obedient and faithful children: God said to Solomon, "I give you also what you have not asked, both riches and honor, so that no other kind shall compare with you, all your days" (3:13). It reminds us that Jesus taught his disciples, "Instead, seek his kingdom, and these things shall be yours as well" (Lk. 12:31).

That doesn't mean we will inherit Solomon's riches nor his prominence, but that if we walk closely with him, the Lord will give us all we really need.

I like the way C.S. Lewis paraphrases this: "Aim at heaven and you will get earth 'thrown in'; aim at earth and you will get neither."

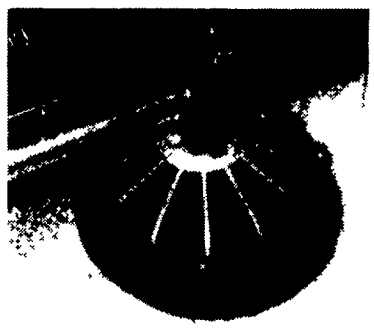
Pax

Boosts Your Efficiency and Products with these Innovative Products...



QUICK-START

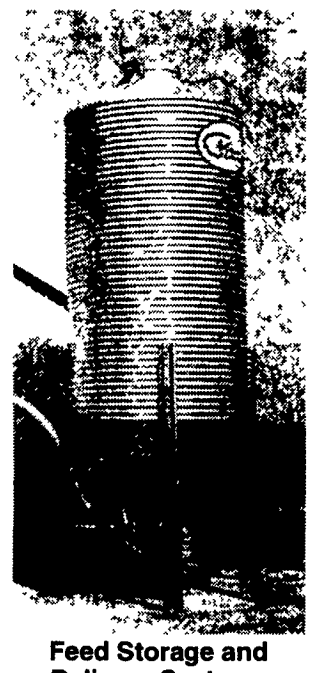
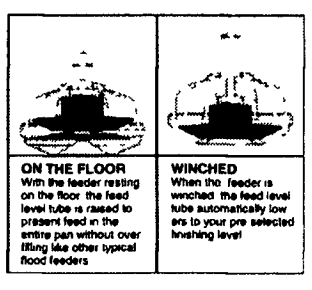
Start chicks with the feeder resting on the floor and the feed pan entirely filled The Pax QUICK-START™ pan provides easy access to plenty of fresh feed – with no accumulation of stale feed in the drop tube – attracting even the smallest chicks to begin feeding right away.



Feed Storage and Delivery Systems



ON THE FLOOR
With the feeder resting on the floor the feed level tube is raised to present feed in the entire pan without over filling like other typical flood feeders
WINCHED
When the feeder is winched the feed level tube automatically lowers to your pre selected finishing level

Flexible Auger for Low Volume, Standard Volume, High Volume, as well as High Moisture (up to 25%) and pellet applications.

Out standing in your field.

The Agri-specialists from Farmers First aren't a bunch of deskbound bankers waiting around for the phone to ring. We get involved with you. Right where you live and work. We lend the money farmers need to keep growing. And, we can help your business in a lot of other ways, too. We talk the talk. And we walk the walk (wherever that might lead us).

November 6, 2000

Cheese Prices Plummet Further!

- Block cheese falls to $0 98/lb
- Barrels steady at $1/lb
- No cheese offered to the CCC

Cheese prices took another dramatic turn last week when prices for 40-pound blocks fell below barrel prices at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange Block cheese fell to $0 98 per pound by Friday, November 3. Barrel cheese remained steady at $1.00 per pound No cheese last week was offered to the USDA=92s dairy price support program

Cheese prices are trading at levels well below the price support ($1 1226) per pound for blocks) The market is waiting for someone to offer cheese to the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) Once cheese enters the price support program, market prices will recover. This experience provides a dramatic illustration for what could happen without the dairy price support program The program will be extended next year under the Ag Appropriations bill.

The futures markets reflected this bearish news. On November 3, 2000 the Class III settlement prices at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange fell to $8 50 for November 2000, $8 93 for

Maryland Dairy Industry Association Annual Meeting Features Family "Team" Plan, Dairy "Info-Base"

WESTMINSTER, Md. — Maryland's $1 billion dairy industry will meet on Nov. 30 to outline two important new concepts designed to help family dairy producers increase their profits and productivity. The Maryland Dairy Industry Association's (MDIA) 2000 Annual Meeting features "A Team Approach to Family Dairying," in addition to presenting a first "hands-on" computer training workshop to solve dairy problems through the National Dairy InfoBase.

Both presentations are part of MDIA's 2000 Annual Meeting, scheduled for Thursday, Nov. 30, at Wilhelm's conference center on Md. Route 140, on the outskirts of Westminster, Maryland.

Noted dairy experts Carl Theunis of Tinedale Farms, Kaukauna, Wisconsin, and Dr. William Heald of Penn State University team up to present a complete plan and demonstration on "A Team Approach to Family Dairying."

The innovative concept involves two segments, family team and professional team. Progressive dairy producer Carl Theunis will outline the family portion, while extension dairy specialist Dr. William Heald will present how the family dairy team is enhanced by professionals, such as nutritionists, veterinarians, bankers, and accountants.

An actual family dairy team from Para-Dice Farms in Chambersburg, Pennsylvania will demonstrate the successful concept, followed by a keynote address by Carl Theunis on his vision of the nation's dairy industry. Building on recent feature articles in leading dairy publications about his passion for family dairy farming, Theunis will outline a plan designed to keep family dairy farming viable in Maryland.

Extension dairy scientists from the University of Maryland will open the MDIA 2000 Annual Meeting with a pre-conference "hands-on" computer training workshop to enroll dairy producers in the National Dairy InfoBase. Participants will register separately, and receive a CD-ROM containing over 2,000 publications specially designed to identify and solve dairy problems. The workshop is open to the public, and begins at 8 a.m. on Nov. 30 at nearby Carroll Community College Annex in Westminster.

Registration fee is complimentary for registrants with Dairy Info Tract CD, $50 for registrants with National Dairy Database versions 1, 2, and 3, and $100 for new registrants. Second registrants from the same organization are free, and can share the CD and computer desk.

MDIA's 2000 Annual Meeting begins officially at 10 a.m. on Nov. 30, at Wilhelm's conference center. Continental breakfast is served at 8:30 a.m. with several dozen industry exhibitors on hand to discuss new products and technology. A new addition to the day-long event is a silent auction featuring a wide array of dairy products and services. Registrants can repeatedly bid during the meeting, and learn the auction results at the end of the program.

Registration for both dairy events can be completed via fax or e-mail through the Maryland Dairy Industry Association. Telephone 202/293-0476, Fax: 202/331-4212, E-mail: agriwash@aol.com. Major bank credit cards are accepted.

Bovine Welfare Forum Explores Link Between Contented Cattle And Quality Products

SCHAUMBURG, Ill. — Where's the beef today? If the numbers are right, it's a part of nearly every meal. Consumers are reacting to improvements being made in the safety, quality, and wholesomeness of everything from hamburger to filet mignon, and are eating beef more than any other meat.

"The US beef industry is looking back down the chain from harvest to birth and instituting source-verification programs," said Robert Smith, DVM, a beef feedlot consultant and part-time professor of veterinary medicine at Oklahoma State University. "'Branded' beef products hold the industry accountable for animal care and meat quality because consumers know who produced the meat and under what circumstances it was produced."

Dr. Smith will discuss health, comfort, and production practices for beef cattle in feedlots at the American Veterinary Medical Association's Animal Welfare Forum, Nov. 10, 2000, in Itasca, Illinois.

With more and more beef producers joining quality-assurance programs developed by the National Cattlemen's Beef Association and state cattle producer affiliates, better and safer beef is being produced. Alliances or marketing cooperatives, such as Nebraska Corn-Fed Beef, Ranchers Renaissance, and the Farmland Supreme Beef Alliance, put a name on the product. Consumers have responded with their pocketbooks — and their appetites. According to the USDA, per capita consumption of boneless beef reached 66 pounds in 1999.

Concerns about food safety have also had a major impact on beef consumption. Governmental regulations and proactive industry measures taken by groups like the Beef Industry Food Safety Council have greatly reduced the incidence of foodborne bacteria.

And there is more good news from the dietary front. Milk and beef are important sources of conjugated linoleic acid (CLA), which has been found to inhibit carcinogenesis in experimental animals. In the September 2000 issue of The AABP Proceedings, CLA was noted as a potent anti-carcinogen in all cancer models tested. Dr. Smith is the editor of the proceedings, published by the American Association of Bovine Practitioners. In addition, a joint 72-week study by the University of Minnesota and Johns Hopkins University revealed that blood cholesterol levels dropped when six-ounces of lean red meat were eaten on a daily basis.

Great findings, says Dr. Smith, but all for naught unless our cattle are treated well. "Happy animals will produce better and will enable us to meet the increasing demand for beef and dairy products," he said. "Cattle deserve the best care possible, and consumers expect nothing less."

Feedlots are big business, with Texas alone feeding more than six million cattle annually. Typical feedlots resemble small cities, with alleys or "streets" running between large dirt pens. Pens can hold 75 to 300 cattle, depending on weight. And feedlots are a bustling business as well.

Every day, feed callers use the streets as they determine the quantity of feed to be delivered to each pen. Large feed trucks bring freshly prepared feed to the cattle two to three times daily. Maintenance crews travel the streets to keep all aspects of the feedlot in good repair. Night watchers are on duty, just in case something goes awry. Pen checkers, or pen riders, on horseback ride through each pen to oversee the general condition of cattle.

Pen riders are responsible for 5,000 to 10,000 cattle per day, and pens are checked seven days a week, year round. Christmas Day is no exception. There is also a crew trained by consulting veterinarians to assist in evaluating a steer or heifer's condition. "At the feedlots, we try to provide the best health care possible," said Dr. Smith. "Animals are like young children. Cattle can't tell us what's wrong, so we have to check them often, and early intervention can mean a more successful treatment."

The details of a treatment protocol are entered into an on-site computer and include other health care information, such as vaccinations, drugs and dosages, and body temperature and weight, which is matched to a calf's tag identification number. Technology has enhanced many health care and maintenance aspects of feedlots, but it is the people who continue to provide the hands-on interaction that cattle enjoy.

"Feedlot cattle are curious and playful. They seem comfortable, lying around and chewing their cud," Dr. Smith said. "There's a perception that these cattle live in unnatural, substandard conditions, but behavior in the feedlot is very similar to that observed on pasture."

That's not to say that life in either setting is always ideal. Respiratory disease is the main cause of death in feedlots. About 0.10% of the cattle die each month. A second area of concern is digestive diseases, but reformulated diets have dramatically decreased death losses to 0.04% per month in recent years.

Stress — and its relationship to food safety and animal welfare — is a growing area of livestock research. Julie Morrow-Tesch, PhD, is a research leader with the USDA-ARS at Texas Tech University who is studying the behavior and physiology of feedlot cattle. She will also speak at the Forum and will evaluate management practices and their impact on animal welfare.

USDA Commits $56 Million

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The USDA recently announced that $56 million this fiscal year will be made available for the eradication of pseudorabies, a contagious and potentially fatal virus that affects hogs and costs producers millions of dollars annually. This money will be used to compensate hog producers and for preventive measures.

This is part of a multiyear effort, which began in 1998, to accelerate eradication of pseduorabies in the U.S. This money will allow USDA to pay hog farmers fair market value for the voluntary destruction of swine herds known to be infected with pseudorabies. Similar activities will be funded as needed in fiscal year 2002.

"This effort will enable us to work toward elimination of pseudorabies from our national hog population, make pork production more profitable for our farmers, protect our international markets, and keep American agriculture safe," said Michael V. Dunn, under secretary for marketing and regulatory programs. "Pseudorabies costs U.S. pork producers about $40 million a year, not including indirect costs associated with lost international markets. That's too much and we are going to end it now."

Most of the funds will be used in Iowa, where 98 percent (about 375) of infected swine herds are located. During this past winter and spring, the number of pseudorabies swine herds increased significantly in Iowa because of mild winter conditions, the spread of disease as a result of swine movements, and decreased vaccination because of lowered swine prices last year. There is one infected herd in New Jersey and one in Tennessee.

Howard County Agricultural Program Receives Top Honors

HOWARD CO., Md. — The Agricultural Marketing Program of the Howard Co. Economic Development Authority received top honors from the FORVM for Rural Maryland for its efforts in agricultural marketing and rural economic development. The program received the Outstanding Rural Economic Development Award at the 2000 Maryland Rural Development and Health Care Summit held recently at Solomons Island. Criteria for selection included noteworthy, creative and innovative techniques brought to bear on challenging economic development situations and the use of partnerships for leveraged resources in achieving business development goals.

Upon accepting the award, Robert Manfuso, secretary-treasurer of the board of directors of the Howard Co. Economic Development Authority and a member of the agriculture committee, state, "Make no mistake, we can't claim Howard Co. is a rural county, but we can claim that agriculture has a future there. The authority recognizes agriculture as a major contributor to the county's identity. It significantly adds to the quality of life for all residents in Howard Co. We are pleased that county government supports farming in Howard Co. through both an aggressive farmland preservation program and with funding for the agricultural marketing program.

Howard Co. executive James Robey acknowledged the award commenting, "Howard Co. is fortunate to have forged a strong partnership between county government and the county economic development authority. This partnership allows us to combine resources to staff and implement a strong agricultural marketing program that targets supporting existing farming enterprises and agribusiness while also identifying the types of farming best suited to our rapidly urbanizing region."

The FORVM for Rural Maryland is a state rural development council and an independent state agency. FORVM serves as a partnership of federal, state, and local government, together with the private sector, to improve the quality of life of all citizens of rural Maryland. This includes policy research and analysis, promotion of regional cooperation, and protection and enhancement of the natural resources and cultural heritage of rural Maryland.

Stream Bank Fencing Is Beneficial

SUNBURY (Northumberland Co.) — Stream bank fencing is a simple, effective way farmers can improve the water quality of the streams and the health of the livestock on their farms.

Livestock and horse owners can contact the Northumberland County Conservation District for information on several programs for assistance in installing stream bank fencing and crossings. Stream bank fencing is a low-cost, low-maintenance best management practice (BMP) that can provide many benefits to the farmer, his livestock, and the environment.

Limiting access to pasture streams can be an effective livestock and pasture management practice. Improved herd health is the most important benefit to the farmer who installs stream bank fencing. Clean, dry cattle are healthier cattle. Wet, muddy conditions increase the risk of udder infections, foot problems, and numerous other water-borne diseases spread in these conditions.

Stabilized stream crossings at controlled access areas also reduce leg and foot injuries from steep, slippery banks. Improved water quality means better drinking water for the livestock.

To Eradicate Pseudorabies

With these funds, USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, in cooperation with state officials, will depopulate severely infected herds while paying producers fair market value for their infected hogs, remove infected hogs from herds not depopulated, vaccinate and test all herds surrounding an infected herd, enforce compliance with vaccination and movement requirement regulations, and enhance surveillance efforts to ensure all infected herds are found rapidly. This year's program will place a greater emphasis on prevention of the disease.

Pseudorabies is a disease of swine that can also affect cattle, horses, dogs, cats, sheep, and goats, but not humans. The disease is caused by pseudorabies virus, an extremely contagious herpesvirus that causes reproductive problems, including abortion, stillbirths, and even occasional death losses in breeding and finishing hogs.

USDA established a voluntary eradication program for pseudorabies in the U.S. in 1989. The program is cooperative in nature and involves federal, state, and industry participation. USDA's veterinary services program and state governments promulgate and enforce the intrastate regulations.

Producers contribute by testing their herds and instituting control and eradication measures. The program's primary activities include surveillance, herd monitoring, and herd cleanup. On Dec. 24, 1998, Glickman made an announcement accelerating this effort — the Accelerated Pseudorabies Eradication Program. APEP started in the midst of record low prices for pork. Secretary Glickman announced that new regulations would allow USDA to pay hog farmers fair market value for the voluntary destruction of swine herds known to be infected with pseudorabies.

Other benefits are:

- Effective pasture management as the stream bank fencing can be combined with additional fencing for rotational and intensive pasture grazing systems.
- Stabilized stream banks.
- Reduced soil erosion.
- Improved fish and wildlife habitat.
- Better public relations with neighbors.

There are three primary stream bank fencing programs available to Northumberland County farmers. The Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) Program, through the Pennsylvania Chesapeake Bay Program (CBP), has been in existence for approximately six years. Also, there are two newer programs — the Chesapeake Bay Foundation and Ducks Unlimited Program (CBF/DU) and the USDA's Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program (CREP).

There are some differences in the requirements of the programs. The DEP/CBP program does not require the tree and shrub plantings; the buffer only needs to be maintained in grass, but can include trees and shrubs, with a minimum width of 12-feet. The CBF/DU and CREP programs require the establishment of a riparian buffer between the stream and the fencing. A riparian buffer is a streamline planting that includes trees and shrubs. The CBF/DU program requires a minimum width from top of bank of 15-feet, and the CREP program requires 35-feet.

The DEP/CBP will pay 100 percent cost-share for the installation of the fencing and one stream crossing and requires the landowner to maintain the system for 10 years. CBF/DU will pay 100 percent for the installation of the fencing and plantings, and the farmer can earn cost-share credits to pay for other BMPs such as stream crossings or grassed waterways. These credits can be earned by establishing the buffer beyond the 15-foot minimum at the rate of $1,000 for pasture or $800 for wetland for each additional acre included in the buffer

The maximum width for the stream buffers is limited to 180-feet. The landowner agrees to maintain the system for 15 years. The CREP program will also cover all the costs for installing the fence, crossings, and planting the buffer. Soil rental and incentive payments are included for the establishment of the buffer. Length of agreement is 10 to 15 years.

Anyone who is interested or would like more information on fencing programs may contact the Northumberland County Conservation District or call (570) 286-7114, ext. 4.

Chesapeake Bay Program Sign-Up Under Way

SUNBURY (Northumberland Co.) — Farmers may sign up for Chesapeake Bay Program cost-share funding assistance to correct existing manure handling, storage, and nutrient management problems.

The Chesapeake Bay Program (CBP) provides cost-share funding assistance for the installation of best management practices (BMPs) to correct these problems.

Farmers may sign up at the Northumberland County Conservation District office. Interested farmers should sign up by Nov. 30, 2000 to be considered for the 2001 funding year, although farmers may sign up anytime during the year.

For more information on the CBP, visit the Northumberland County Conservation District office or call the office at (570) 286-7114, ext. 4.

Survey Reveals Swine Industry Trends

By Robert Meinen
Penn State

A 10-year study conducted by the National Pork Producers Council, Iowa State University, and The University of Minnesota has shown an increase in swine industry wages of over 50 percent from 1990 through 1999.

The average industry wage for swine production workers at the end of the decade was $29,726 and only three percent below the average U.S. civilian worker. In comparison, the average wage in 1990 was $19,192 and 20 percent below the national average.

According to the study, the increase in farm size played a key role in driving these changes.

The percentage of farms with fewer than 3,000 animals dropped from 47.4 percent in 1990 to 11.2 percent in 1999, while the percentage of farms with greater than 10,000 pigs grew from 22.2 percent to 71.4 percent over the same period.

Employee Base

As producers take advantage of unit cost reduction by increasing herd size, it is necessary to maintain a more advanced employee base.

Multiple-site production units, designed for each phase of production, are taking the place of older, single-site, farrow-to-finish operations. These new systems call for more employees and effective personnel management. In addition, employees must become specialized in a single phase of production, which requires a higher level of education.

The study showed that producers and employees with a four-year college degree rose from 24.1 percent to 35.7 percent in 1990 to 23.3 percent in 1999. Owners are finding that productivity increases when workers are offered a production bonus plan.

These incentive plans vary from producer to producer, but the percentage of employees eligible for these performance-based payment programs has increased by 9.5 percent over the 10-year period. Over 58 percent of employees currently receive incentive payments.

The study also documented a continuing challenge for the swine industry to attract and retain young employees. Workers below the age of 30 decreased from 45.2 percent to 34.8 percent over the time of the study, and the number of people entering the industry between the ages of 25 and 35 decreased by 10 percent.

Employee turnover is also on the decline — the average years spent in the industry decrease from 8.0 years to 6.4 years; however, the average longevity for all U.S. employees is only five years.

Employee Health Wages

Researchers also asked a series of health-related questions during the 10-year period, particularly in 1999. The current data show a heightened awareness of potential health risks and an increase in the quality of the work environment.

The risks include respiratory problems, skeletal muscular health, fatigue, and stress. The study revealed that both dust and gas levels are lower than ever. Employees who rated dust and gas levels as high dropped from 15.3 percent to 9.8 percent in 1990 to 6.3 percent to 3.9 percent in 1999.

This progress is complemented by the fact that 90 percent of producers now offer dust masks to their employees. However, only 25 percent of the industry employees say that they wear a mask on a consistent basis.

Salaries for swine production workers have increased in the past decade and are now only three percent below those of the average U.S. civilian worker. Employees are more specialized and are more likely to have college degrees.

Today's employees have a heightened awareness of health-related issues, and the importance of having a clean working environment. Fortunately, steady improvements in air quality have also been noted.

Simmental Sire Summary Released

BOZEMAN, Mont. — The American Simmental Association (ASA) has released its Fall 2000 Sire Summary.

"This summary is based upon millions of performance records accumulated over more than 30 years," said ASA Executive Vice President Jerry Lipsey. "It is an up-to-date, highly accurate measurement of Simmental and Simbrah cattle."

In all, 102,535 bulls were evaluated by the ASA, working with the Animal Breeding Group at Cornell University, Ithaca, New York. The summary contains data and the corresponding Expected Progeny Differences (EPDs) published on 973 Simmental bulls and 40 Simbrah sires.

The Fall 2000 Sire Summary represents the seventh official run of the innovative Multiple-Breed International Cattle Evaluation (MB-ICE) system, which provides comparisons among all animals in the database, regardless of their fraction of Simmental breeding. Under this system, the American and Canadian Simmental Associations are combined to produce a single international cattle evaluation, allowing animals in both herdbooks to be directly compared.

Traits evaluated include: calving ease, birth weight, weaning weight, yearling weight, maternal calving ease, maternal milk, maternal weaning weight, plus the carcass traits of: carcass weight, percent retail cuts and marbling.

The Fall 2000 Sire Summary is available on-line at http://www.simmental.org. To reserve a hard copy, please contact ASA at 1 Simmental Way, Bozeman, MT 59715, by telephone at (406) 587-4531, by fax at (406) 587-9301, or by e-mail at simmental@simmgene.com.

The ASA Sire Summary is published twice annually and is distributed as part of the spring and fall issues of either SimTalk or The Register, two of ASA's official publications. ASA, in 1971, was the first beef breed association to publish a sire summary.

USDA Releases Report On Farm-To-School Alliances

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The USDA recently announced the release of an on-line publication summarizing the highlights of the USDA Small Farm/School Meals Initiative Southeast Regional Workshop May 1 in Georgetown, Ky.

The report, "How Local Farmers and School Food Service Buyers Are Building Alliances," can be viewed on USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS) Website at http://www.ams.usda.gov/tmd/mta/publications.htm.

"Ninety-four percent of all farms in the United States are small or limited-resource farms, grossing less than $250,000 in annual receipts," said AMS Administrator Kathleen A. Merrigan. "To enhance the earning potential of these farm operations, AMS has assumed a prominent role in facilitating direct marketing initiatives between small and limited-resource agricultural producers and local school districts."

The workshop, aimed at boosting the use of locally produced fresh food in school feeding programs, attracted more than 180 school food service directors, state and federal officials, extension agents, members of farm cooperatives, and agricultural marketing specialists.

PFB Discusses Concerns Regarding Importation

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — The Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, the state's largest general farming organization, expressed concern recently about safeguards to prevent the importation of large lots of diseased livestock into Pennsylvania.

At this meeting of the Pennsylvania Animal Health and Diagnostic Commission, Dr. John Enck, executive director of the commission, briefed members and other attendees on a nationwide effort to develop an emergency management system to respond to an outbreak of a foreign animal disease in the U.S.

"Farm Bureau applauds the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and others who are working to develop this important system," said Marel Raub, Farm Bureau's director of regulatory affairs. "Howeverk, in addition to procedures for responding to a disease crisis, we must not forget to do all we can to prevent a foreign animal disease from entering the country in the first place."

This discussion arose in response to requests made to the USDA about importing three lots of heifers, totaling 10,000 head, into the state from Uruguay. These applications have been suspended indefinitely, due to the detection of Foot and Mouth Disease (FMD) in Uruguay.

The applications had been pending for several months, but were delayed because of investigations by USDA of Uruguay's disease status and control system and a lack of guidelines for importation of large numbers of animals. Such guidelines would have to be put in place before similar importations could occur from Uruguay or any other country in the future.

USDA has assured the agricultural community that no guidelines will be developed without input from the states and other interested parties. Farm Bureau requested that commission members begin to consider the special characteristics of the state and its animal agriculture industry so that when the opportunity arises to submit comments, Pennsylvania will have a strong voice.

Adams County Honors 4-H Leaders, Members

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — Adams County 4-H leaders and teens were honored for their years of dedicated service to Adams County youth through the 4-H program at the Annual 4-H Leaders' Recognition Banquet, conducted recently here at the Agricultural and Natural Resources Building.

All 4-H Leaders attending received recognition for their years of dedicated service to the Adams County 4-H program. Special recognition was given to teen leaders and volunteer adult leaders with one, five, 20, 25, 30, 40, and 55 years of service.

Katie Martin, Orrtanna, received a gold 4-H paper weight for completing the 4-H Teen Leadership project. Katie's leadership involvement included being a counselor at Overnight 4-H Camp, a server at 4-H chicken barbecues, and teen assistant at 4-H Fair.

First-year leaders receiving a bronze clover pin were Connie Barra and Carol Morton. Five-year leaders receiving a silver clover lapel were Kimberly Black and Mary Lynn Martin.

Ronald Funt, Arendtsville; Harry and Mary Jane Hilbert, Littlestown; and Judy Sterner, Gettyburg, were recognized for 20 years of service and received a plaque and a diamond center clover pin.

Alan Zepp received a silver tray and a clover lapel pin with an emerald center for 25 years of dedicated service. Bonnie Kuntz received a silver bowl and gold lapel pin with a ruby center for 30 years of service. Helen Rex received a 4-H gold ladies watch and gold lapel pin with a five point diamond center for 40 years of volunteer service. Teresa Murren was honored for 55 years of service as a 4-H volunteer leader with a pearl centered gold clover pin, dinner for two at Hickory Bridge Farm Restaurant, a pot of orchids, and a framed picture collage.

The Adams County 4-H program honored Dick Oneto with their 2000 Individual "Partner in 4-H" recognition. Over the years, Oneto worked with many 4-H members and leaders in the Heidlersburg 4-H Club.

Oneto's most recent support was coordinating the applesauce, vinegar, and pickles for the 4-H chicken barbecues. For more than 14 years, Oneto has been involved in many different aspects of the Adams County 4-H program.

David and Joan Musselman, Musselman Florist and Greenhouse, were recognized for the Business "2000 Partner in 4-H" Award. Dave and Joan have been a strong supporter of the plant science projects. Musselman's has supported the plant science projects for Upper Adams 4-H Club and the New Oxford 4-H Club for many years. Their support extended to the 4-H Beef Club, the former county 4-H capon program, and most recently the new Agricultural and Natural Resources Building open house.

The 4-H Leaders Banquet included the annual meeting of 4-H Clubs of Adams County, Inc. Elected by the 4-H leaders to serve three-year director terms were Ellen Black, Gardners; James Gilbert, York Springs; and Amy Skvarka, Biglerville. Helen Rex was elected to serve a two-year director term.

Adams County 4-H leaders received special recognition for years of service at the annual 4-H Leader's Banquet. Those pictured are Alan Zepp (25 years), Bonnie Kuntz (30 years), Helen Rex (40 years), and Teresa Murren (55 years).

Harry and Mary Jane Hilbert, Adams County 4-H Swine Club; Judy Sterner, 4-H Horse Club; and Ronald Funt, Adams County 4-H Swine Club were recognized for 20 years of service as 4-H leaders at the Annual 4-H Leaders Banquet.

Helen Rex presents Joan and David Musselman of Musselmans Florist and Greenhouses with the Chamber of Commerce Someone Special Award plaque and the Business "Partner in 4-H" Award. The 4-H award is a personalized Winross 4-H Truck plaque. Joan and David have supported the plant science project area, the former 4-H Capon program, the open house of the new Agricultural and Natural Resources Center, and the 4-H Beef Club Show and Sale.

Amy Skvarka, Biglerville; Ellen Black, Aspers; Helen Rex, Biglerville; and James Gilbert, York Springs were elected to serve as directors on the board of directors of 4-H Clubs of Adams County Inc. at the Annual Adams County 4-H Leaders Banquet.

Congress Passes Ag Spending Bill

WASHINGTON, D.C. — According to National Farmers Union (NFU), the FY-2001 agricultural appropriations conference report will be beneficial to farmers and ranchers because it contains emergency assistance. But the farmer and rancher organization is disappointed that Congress again missed an opportunity to address important long-term concerns of farmers, ranchers, and rural communities.

"We commend the members of the Congress for their work to provide needed assistance to crop, livestock, and dairy producers who have suffered greatly from weather-related, production and quality disasters, as well as market-related losses that are out of their control," said NFU President Leland Swenson. "We are, however, disappointed that Congress, once again, has not chosen to address the failures of current farm, trade, and competition policy that have led to the lowest commodity prices in 20 years and economic crisis in our rural communities."

Farmers Union cites the legislation's failure to include long-term farm policy provisions that could stem the price crisis faced by producers today through an adequate safety net and meaningful trade sanctions reform. The bill severely limits U.S. farmers' opportunities to trade with Cuba by restricting export funding and codifying travel restrictions to the island country.

"Farmers and ranchers are under tremendous economic pressure," said Swenson. "There is no excuse for not having these vital issues addressed when farm commodity prices are at crisis levels. We are grateful that the bill provides needed assistance to crop, livestock, and dairy farmers."

Successful Ohio Farms Need Good Environmental Management

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Most farmers want to do all they can to be good neighbors, and understanding what is needed for good environmental management should be on the top of their list, said Dale Ricker, Ohio State University Extension swine associate.

"Water quality and air quality are both on the top of people's mind, and we need to do as good a job as we can to ensure environmental quality is maintained, for our own safety and well being, as well as others," Ricker said.

Ricker, who completes environmental assessments of hog farms as part of the National Pork Producers Council On-Farm Environmental Assessment Program, has developed a list of helpful things livestock producers can do to better manage their farms' environment.

It all starts with a manure nutrient management plan — a written plan outlining how farmers will manage the manure nutrients their operation produces and the resulting acreage needed. These plans are often developed with the help of local soil and water conservation district personnel.

"Producers who do not own enough ground for manure application often secure manure hauling agreements with neighbors or landlords to secure enough total acres for their manure management plan," Ricker said.

Manure analysis and soil tests accurately determine how much manure should be applied to particular fields. For example, a 1,000-head hog finishing operation may need 100 to 350 acres for manure spreading, depending on existing levels of nitrogen and phosphorus in the soil and corresponding levels of nitrogen and phosphorus in the manure, Ricker said.

"If soil tests high in phosphorus, then a farmer may need a bunch of land for hauling, but if it is low in nutrients then more could be applied," he said. "Manure nutrient management plans ensure manure is not overapplied."

There are a number of private laboratories that will do soil and manure analysis, Ricker said.

Field maps are a good way to keep records of where, when and how much manure was applied in different areas. Farmers can mark on a field map what date manure was applied and shade in how much land was covered.

"This provides an accurate written record that can be referred to for crop planning and future manure hauling events," he said. "Field maps also can help coordinate manure application with crop rotation because often as farmers rotate crops they also rotate the fields where manure is applied."

Livestock producers who store manure in pits or lagoons, often for six months to a year until application is appropriate, should keep a record of freeboard space — empty space left in the pit or lagoon until hauling is needed. If producers kept a weekly record of how fast the manure levels were rising and suddenly the rate changed, they would know to check for leaks or reasons for abnormal increases, Ricker said.

"A pit could fill rapidly because of a heavy rain, but there also could be an undetected waterline break that could be fixed. Producers don't want to pay to haul excess water in manure, and the extra water could affect storage time," he said. "Checking and recording freeboard space is a method of tracking volume that could eliminate surprises."

Air quality in a livestock building is often variable, depending on the time of year, and can have negative impacts on animals and workers. Air quality should be as good as possible to maintain animal growth, health and efficiency, and not expose animals and workers to gases that can build and cause problems, Ricker said.

"Periodically check air flows and make sure they are working as they are designed to work. Even in new facilities we sometimes see design flaws that impact the ventilation of barns," he said. "Air exchange rates and relative humidity are important to disease control through removal of contaminants."

Fans, shutters and air inlets should be regularly cleaned to remove dust and debris and ensure maximum efficiency of the ventilation system. It has been reported that dirty fan blades and shutters can reduce the capacity of a fan by up to 20 percent, Ricker said.

Testing farm water can document bacterial contamination, mineral content, hardness, total dissolved solids and pH. The pH of farm water should be between 6.5 and 7.5. Producers can take necessary action to correct water problems once they have been targeted, he said.

Finally, livestock producers should maintain the outward appearance of their operation to eliminate "conceptual odors," Ricker said.

"If an operation isn't neat, clean, well landscaped and doesn't look good on the outside, then people may ask how it could possible be well managed on the inside," he said.

For more information about proper environmental management on the farm, producers can contact their county office of Ohio State University Extension or Soil and Water Conservation District. Interested people can get more information about the NPPC On-Farm Environmental Assurance Program by calling the Ohio Pork Council at (800) 320-7991.

On the tour, "The aroma was so satisfying and it made us so hungry," Fisher said.

Fisher said the complex of modern buildings at Hatfield was kept well, and the buildings are so "neat and handsome."

The Hatfield processing business was begun in 1895 by John C. Clemens. Fisher related the history of the operation through the past century and described some products made by the company.

Fisher said 50 percent of the hogs processed by Hatfield are Pennsylvania pigs. Others come from New York state, Virginia, Maryland, North Carolina, Illinois, Ohio, and Iowa.

Hilda Fisher, born and raised on a fruit farm in Rockland Township, graduated from Oley High School and Kutztown College. An elementary teacher for 20 years, Fisher taught at Neff's School in Maxatawny Township, Links School in Oley, and in the Boyertown School District.

Hilda's husband Frank Fisher, born and raised on a farm in Oley Township, is a graduate of Oley High School. He has been a farmer since 1937.

After beginning as farmers in Robesonia, Frank and Hilda moved to the present Fisher farm in 1945, the sixth generation of Fishers to own the homestead. Frank has worked on many community projects.

The farm, permanently preserved through the county's agricultural land easement program, has grown agronomic crops, potatoes, and raised swine and steers.

Hilda and Frank, married in 1942, have three children — Steve, Gery, and Eloise.

Steve Clemens, who visited the Fisher residence, spoke about the Fisher Century Farm, established in 1790.

Clemens provided a detailed description of the houses and buildings on the Fisher homestead and their historical significance.

Clemens, born in Lansdale and raised in Hatfield, is a graduate of North Penn High School.

Clemens began his career in 1979 at Hatfield as a road driver hauling swine and delivering pork products. After a decade, Clemens became supervisor of livestock delivery and then supervisor of scheduling and transportation.

After eight years in that responsibility, Clemens is in a three-year leadership, education, assessment, and development program. The program allows Clemens to experience each department within Hatfield Quality Meats.

Clemens is the youngest of five children and is married to Patricia MacCord. They have five children between the ages of 3-16: Steven, Morgan, Dana, Brian, and Cassidy.

Honorees

Included in those honored during the banquet was Lancaster Farming Newspaper, which received a Public Relations In Agriculture Award.

The newspaper has been published every Saturday for more than 45 years. Bill Hughes, vice president of agrifinance with First Union National Bank, presented the honor to staff writers Andy Andrews and Lou Ann Good.

Hughes also honored another recipient with the award, Edward G. Hartman. Hartman has led the Berks County Farm Bureau as president from 1988-1998.

A farmer all his life in Spring, Bern, and Muhlenberg townships, Ed, with wife Josephine, have passed the farming operation on to their sons (the fifth generation of Hartmans farming near Reading).

Hughes honored Hartman for his dedication.

"This gentleman has dedicated his life to agriculture and has been an excellent spokesperson for Berks farmers and farm families," said Hughes.

Hartman has served as chairman of the Farm Bureau state political action committee and on the state commodities and local affairs committees.

The 2000 Tressie S. Caton Woman in Agriculture Award was presented to Hilda Fisher, who was also a Farm-City exchangee.

Fisher's whole life has been spent in promoting agriculture and historical preservation, according to the council.

Fisher was active in many areas, including helping to ensure that Oley Township was the first to be registered in the U.S. as a historical place; local promoter and supporter of long-term efforts to have Oley Township develop an effective ag preservation zone; and is known locally as the "Oley Valley historian."

Marino, Stecher, Hoffman Honored By Gloucester Ag Board

CLAYTON, N.J. — Russell Marino, mayor of South Harrison Township and Al Stecher, former mayor of Woolwich Township, were presented with Distinguished Service to Agriculture awards at the recent annual dinner-dance and business meeting of the Gloucester County Board of Agriculture (GCBA) in Glassboro, N.J.

Joe Hoffman, former Gloucester County clerk, was also presented with the Special Service to Agriculture Award.

Russell J. Marino, senior partner and president of Sun Valley Orchards, was recognized and presented a plaque by Doug Zee, past president of the GCBA.

The Marino family farms 1,200-acres of peaches, vegetables, and field crops in South Harrison Township, where Marino has been mayor for the past 14 years.

"The Marino's are one of the leaders in modern growing and packing technology," said Zee. "With a state-of-the-art packing and storage facility, they have now integrated their business into trucking and wholesaling."

Marino was also recognized for his service to county and state agriculture and to his community. He is one of three growers from Gloucester County that sit on the state board of agriculture.

He was recognized for his past service as a director on the New Jersey Farm Bureau, the Gloucester County Board of Agriculture, The New Jersey Tomato Council, The New Jersey Peach Council, The Swedesboro Auction, Pioneer Farm Credit Association, and the Woodstown Agway. Zee also recognized his service as mayor and deputy mayor in South Harrison Township and his membership on the South Harrison Township Planning Commission, the township environmental commission, and his term as a trustee of the South Harrison Township Educational Alliance.

"Russell has also been president of the Gloucester County Mayors Association," said Zee.

Stecher's plaque and citation were presented by Michelle Infante-Casella, agricultural agent with Rutgers Cooperative Extension of Gloucester County. The Stecher family owns Stecher's County Store and Farm in Woolwich Township.

Stecher was cited for his innovative marketing methods and the development of his upscale store in the western edge of Gloucester County.

He was also recognized for the production of melons that are niche-marketed in the eastern U.S. Infante-Casella emphasized the personal service of Stecher and his family, in recognizing their many contributions. The Stechers were also recognized for their Christmas season marketing.

"During the Christmas season, shoppers can find hundreds of different ornaments, wreaths, flower arrangements, candles, and other gifts after picking out their fresh tree," said Infante-Casella.

Stecher was also recognized for his past service as a director of the Gloucester County Board of Agriculture, the New Jersey Farm Bureau, and as a member of the American Farm Bureau.

"Al Stecher has been a special person in his community," said Infante-Casella. "He was Woolwich Township mayor for 13 years, and since 1988, he has been chairman of the Woolwich Township Planning Commission," stated Infante-Casella. Stecher was also recognized for his service on the Gloucester County Solid Waste Commission and as building inspector, zoning inspector, and a police officer in Woolwich Township.

George Dean, vice president of the GCGA, presented a special award to Joe Hoffman, former Gloucester County clerk for 36 years. "Joe Hoffman's roots go back to 1923 with his birth on the family farm," said Dean.

"At age 29, a tragic hunting accident almost ended his life and three years later, he left farming," stated Dean.

Joe Hoffman was recognized for his accomplishments as a banker with Newfield Bank and his long service to 4-H Youth Development in the county, in addition to his impartial work as the Gloucester County clerk. Hoffman was also cited for his work as past Chairman of United Way, as a trustee of Underwood Memorial Hospital and chair of their building drive.

FUTURES MARKETS

Midwest or other western orders will face the brunt of these adverse market forces. Dairy farmers producing unregulated milk (Grade B or C milk) will face the lowest milk prices at Class III values.

How to alleviate these market conditions? Here is a list of ideas:

Step 1: Someone, anyone, move cheese into the dairy price support program. This will immediately offer market stability. That effort is not without some cost, however. A processor will have to arrange for special packaging and invite an inspector into their plant. That just takes time to arrange.

Step 2. Slow down the rate of growth in cow numbers. This should go without saying, but it is the number one problem in the dairy industry today. Unfortunately, the market will take care of some of this. Some farms will be forced to exit the business. Hopefully larger farms will see an opportunity to slow down their expansion plans.

Step 3. Allocate more milk to butter/powder. Right now the support is on powder. Allocating additional milk to butter/powder production may help stabilize cheese prices. However, it may also reduce butter prices. That would be bad for Class I, II, and IV prices.

Step 4. Slow down expansion into new cheese plants. Perhaps now is the time to reconsider future investment plans in cheese facilities. Others may want to consider whether or not to close down older facilities.

In other news, I just got back from speaking at the 2nd Annual New England Dairy Day in Burlington, Vermont. There was excellent attendance and we had a spirited discussion about milk marketing, consolidation in the dairy industry, and issues related to the Northeast Interstate Dairy Compact. You can download the text to my speech at: http://www.aers.psu.edu/dairyoutlook/

December 2000, and $9.45 to $9.90 for January through May 2001.

Those areas of the country that have limited Class III use (orders in the east) will effectively be buffered from most of this dramatic price declines. For example, dairy producers in the Northeast federal order have only 33 of sales used for Class III purposes. However, farmers that market milk in the Upper

Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Association Contest Deadlines

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Association contest deadlines are fast approaching.

Junior members reminded that the following contests have January 1, 2001 deadlines. Contests include distinguished junior member contest forms, junior progressive breeder awards, breeder of excellent award, 30,000-lb. Production Award, Total Performance Award, Achievement Scholarship Award, 150,000-lb. Lifetime Production Award, Public Speaking Contest, "PAL" Adult Leader Award, and folding display contest.

Two other contests have later deadlines, including the Dairy Bowl Contest with a Jan. 9, 2001 due date and the photo contest where members bring their entries to the convention on Feb. 2, 2001.

There is one new contest this year, an Extemporaneous Public Speaking Contest. Junior members will enter at the Junior Convention on Feb. 2, 2001 and participate in the contest on Saturday, Feb. 3.

Manure Management On Environmentally Sensitive Areas

Mark Goodson
Extension Agent
Agronomy/Soils
York County

Editor's Note: This was adapted from "Penn State Agronomy Facts 55: Estimating Manure Application Rates."

Farmers are responsible for any pollution caused by the spreading of manure. Some special environmental considerations for field application of manure, as listed in the Nutrient Management Act regulations, include:

1. Do no spread manure within 100-feet of an open sinkhole where surface water flow is toward the sinkhole, unless the manure is mechanically incorporated within 24 hours of application.

2. Do not spread manure within 100-feet of active private drinking water sources such as wells and springs where surface flow is toward the water source, unless the manure is mechanically incorporated within 24 hours of application.

3. Do not spread manure within 100-feet of an active public drinking water source, unless other State or Federal laws or regulations require a greater isolation distance.

4. Do not spread manure within concentrated water flow areas in which vegetation is maintained, such as ditches, waterways, gullies, and swales, during times when soil is frozen, snow covered, or saturated.

5. Do not spread manure within concentrated water flow areas in which vegetation is not maintained, such as intermittent streams, gullies, and ditches.

6. Do not spread manure within 100-feet of streams, springs, lakes, ponds, intakes to agricultural drainage systems (such as in-field catch basins and pipe outlet terraces), or other types of surface water conveyance, where surface flow is toward the identified area, during times when soil is frozen, snow covered, or saturated.

7. Do not spread manure upslope within 200-feet of streams, springs, lakes, ponds, intakes to agricultural drainage systems (such as in-field catch basins and pipe outlet terraces), or other types of surface water conveyance where the slope greater than eight percent within the 200-feet during times when soil is frozen, snow covered, or saturated.

When necessary, to spread manure on frozen ground, apply to your most level fields, those farthest from streams, and those that having a vegetative cover or crop residue with the lowest runoff potential. Apply manure to distant or limited-access fields in early winter, then to nearer fields later in the season, when mud and snow make access and spreading more difficult.

Use of conservation practices that reduce or slow runoff will help reduce the adverse effects of winter-applied manure. If spreading manure on soils subject to flooding, do so only at times when flooding is least likely to occur.

Average Farm Feed Costs for Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

Slaughter Plants Re-Examined Using Animal Welfare Strategies

SCHAUMBURG, Ill. — Meatloaf and mashed potatoes are a weekly tradition in many homes, served with love by mothers across America. But Mom isn't the only one these days who is putting an extra helping of TLC into the meal.

Thanks to the efforts of a livestock welfare guru named Temple Grandin, beef slaughter plants are taking a renewed look at their operations, this time through the cow's perspective. "Animal handling in slaughter plants has seen a light year of improvement in recent years," said Dr. Grandin, who received her PhD degree in animal science from the University of Illinois. "The meat industry is improving the way it treats cattle."

Dr. Grandin is an assistant professor of animal science at Colorado State University, widely recognized and well-respected for improving animal handling facilities and practices and increasing cattle performance nationwide. She will talk in detail about the treatment of cattle during slaughter at the American Veterinary Medical Association's Animal Welfare Forum, Nov. 10, 2000, in Itasca, Illinois.

"Slaughter plants are operated very differently than they were in the '70s," she said. "The industry is turning around thanks to a growing concern for animals. It's been quite a dramatic improvement."

And that improvement is, in no small part, due to Dr. Grandin. By using a "cow's-eye-view" to relate to the fear experienced by animals in packing plants, she has revolutionized the industry. Dr. Grandin has developed entry chute and conveyor systems that calm animals and allow humane slaughter. Her equipment designs are based on research finding such as including solid sides and roofs overhead to block a cow's wide-angle, 300-degree field of vision. More than half of the cattle dispatched in North America now move through equipment she designed.

As an independent consultant, Dr. Grandin reviews slaughter plant operations. In the first six months of 1999, she found that 17 of 22 plants she audited, or 77 percent, rendered more than 95 percent of cattle unconscious with a single shot from a captive bolt runner. The method destroys the brain instantaneously. However, some clinically dead cattle may involuntarily kick after stunning, according to Dr. Grandin, and appear to be in pain. Brain-wave research performed in New Zealand, Holland, and England has verified the procedure as painless. By the end of 1999, 37 of 41 plants reviewed, or 90 percent were using the stunning procedure correctly.

Her audits also revealed that 86 percent of plants achieved cattle vocalization scores of less than 3 percent. Cattle indicate stress by mooing and bellowing, so a quiet plant is a low-stress plant.

Temple Grandin is in huge demand, both nationally and overseas, because the good word is out. When she's on hand, nothing gets overlooked. "Cattle are afraid of the dark. They don't like rapid movement, noises, or shadows," Dr. Grandin said. "One plant had a problem with cattle balking and refusing to go up the chute. I toured the facility and found a small metal chain jiggling in the distance. After the chain was removed, the problem was solved."

Dr. Grandin's problem-solving methods involve a critical, top-to-bottom analysis — in the most literal sense. She studies every inch of the plant, from floor to ceiling, to determine how a cow will perceive the environment.

"Most adverse things found in slaughter plants are fairly easy to fix. Stunning equipment needs to be maintained; lighting may need to be adjusted," Dr. Grandin said. "It's a matter of plant managers getting rid of all the distractions."

Regulations and guidelines for humane slaughter are explained in the Humane Slaughter Act, which is enforced by the USDA. Dr. Grandin was instrumental in the act's development and also created objective criteria for humane treatment in slaughter plants, which are embraced throughout the cattle industry.

Tobacco Auction Needs Location

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Pennsylvania Tobacco Marketing Association plans another auction season.

Problem is, the auction doesn't have a location, and the association is putting out a request.

According to Dennis Hess, auction manager, "If anybody had an idea on a building that we could rent, we would probably like to have at least 10,000 square feet with a ground-level door and a couple of dock doors."

Almost any location in the county would be OK for the association.

Hess said, "The tobacco season this year seems to be showing a fair amount of interest at this time. I have a feeling that the market will be better this year than last."

Hess noted there is considerably less tobacco in the area, about half of what was here last year.

The auction operated late last year and into this year in a warehouse at the Orlon Industrial Park in New Holland. There, growers received bids of about 60-65 cents per pound, on average, according to Hess, for mostly Maryland 609 and some Pa. Type 41 tobaccos.

The association conducted a sale in mid-December and several sales into the early part of this year in a leased 20,000 square foot building.

Hess noted, despite depressed prices from last year, already this year there has been some interest by buyers. A little bit has been negotiated under contract at $1 a pound.

Hess said he knew of one fellow who received $1.10 a pound, "which already sounds better than last year," he said.

"Buyers are anxious to get started this year," noted Hess.

Growers should consider the following if they intend to market the tobacco at the auction:

- Grade the tobacco properly. Be careful about moisture levels — keep them down.
- Keep bales light. The ideal weight for tobacco bales is between 50-60 pounds. If they are packed together and become too heavy, the tobacco can become damaged, especially if wet.

The association has eyed January as the possible start of the auction, or perhaps before, if a building becomes available.

Hess noted that if anybody knows of available space for the auction, call him at the cooperative, (717) 626- 6970.

Berks County 4-H Beef Take Home Honors

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — Members of the Berks County 4-H Beef Club recently competed for top honors at the Kutztown Fair in August and the county roundup in September.

Judges for the two events were John Hausner, York County, and Robert Mikesell, State College.

Kelly Dietrich, Hamburg, showed her steer "Lucas" to champion honors in fitting and reserve champion heavyweight at Kutztown Fair and was selected champion market steer at roundup. During the fitting contest, 4-H beef club members use 30 minutes to prepare their animals for the show. The animals enter the ring clean, dry, and clipped and are then fitted in the ring. The first and second place individuals in each age division return for five minutes to put the finishing touches on their animals for champion honors. Reserve champion fitter and showman was Cathryn Levan, also of Hamburg.

Champion honors in showmanship at the Kutztown Fair went to Emilie Miller, Womelsdorf, with her bred-and-owned Hereford steer, "K-Ci." In this event, contestants are judged on their ability to present their animal and also themselves in the showring. Miller placed fourth in the overall champion showmanship contest. In this competition, champion showmen in dairy, sheep, goats, beef, hogs and dairy beef compete for top showmanship honors by showing each species.

In the market steer competition at Kutztown Fair, grand champion honors went to Clay Brubaker, Womelsdorf. Brubaker, a first-year 4-H member, exhibited his crossbred steer "Tex." Matthew Manbeck, also of Womelsdorf, showed the reserve champion market steer at both Kutztown Fair and roundup, after winning champion lightweight steer honors at both events with "Scottie."

The final beef competition at Kutztown Fair was the breeding classes. Five breeds of cattle were represented. Champion female of all breeds went to Matthew Manbeck, with his Simmental champion, "Matts Sable." Champion Angus went to Michael Holcombe, Mohrsville. Champion Hereford female went to Emilie Miller with her junior yearling. Champion Limousin honors went to Kelly Dietrich with her junior yearling.The outstanding beef club project members for 2000 were announced at roundup. The Outstanding Beef Club Member was a tie this year between Emilie Miller and Clay Brubaker. The tie was broken on an interview. Miller's steer brought $1,600 from Moyer Packing Company and Alderfer Auction Company. Brubaker's steer brought $1,500 from Select Collissions Center, Empire Service, and Bunnell Farms.

Reserve Outstanding Project Member was also a tie between Matthew Manbeck and Cassandra Spatz. This tie was also broken on an interview and Manbeck sold his steer to Miles Angstadt Livestock Hauling for $1,050 and Spatz sold to Rich Brandt Farm and Land for $1,250. The Outstanding Project Member is determined by how well members place in showmanship and market classes at Reading and Kutztown fairs and roundup, and how they score in a skill-a-thon, which tests beef industry knowledge.

BERKS COUNTY 2000 4-H BEEF ROUNDUP RESULTS

Hesston Forage Harvesters — Model 7155S

The secret to low-cost forage harvesting.

It's no big secret that whole-stalk corn silage produces 40 to 50% more digestible energy over corn harvested as grain.

The big secret is how economically and efficiently you can harvest it with a Hesston® 7155S Forage Harvester

More cutting power.

Designed for the average-sized livestock producer, this small machine packs a big punch Its "straight-thru crop-flow" design puts more power into cutting, less into handling the crop. That means greater field efficiency year after year

The 7155S easily handles tractor PTOs from 90 to 175 hp, and is available with 2-row corn silage header or 6-foot-wide hay pickup.

Fingertip control.

Electro-hydraulic remote control puts harvesting functions at your fingertips, and the 1,000 rpm drive assures big capacity

This season, make silage more efficiently and economically – with a new Hesston 7155S.

This Old House Moves To A New Home

MICHELLE RANCK
Lancaster Farming Staff

MOUNT JOY (Lancaster Co.) — As a newly-married couple, Ben and Sarah Zurin have already experienced a life-changing, moving experience.

Their home was transported almost 400 yards to a new location.

The farmhouse, which the Zurins estimate is between 125-150 years old, was formerly owned by Ben's grandparents, Henry and Verna Stoltzfus.

"They (Henry and Verna) were talking about tearing it down about two years ago, then somebody mentioned to them about moving it onto the development and selling it as a regular house," said Ben. "I jumped on it right away because I really liked the house, the development, and this area," said Ben, who noted that Sarah was also enthusiastic about the idea.

The home sits on a 120-acre farm where the Stoltzfus family fed steers and ran a business. Henry, who patented and developed silo distributors, owned and operated Lancaster Level Flo, a silo distributor manufacturer.

The couple resided on the farm for 46 years before moving into their new home in May. The move takes them across the field in a development, still within view of the old farmhouse.

Messiah Village, an assisted living facility, now owns the land. When Ben and Sarah Zurin, who were married in June, moved into the house this summer, they knew they would be moving out while the house traveled across the field. The land was sold before the move, and the couple had until the end of the year to move the home to a lot on the adjacent development.

Cost of the transport for the Zurins was economical because the house moved across the field and not on a road, which would require a police escort and a special permit. Zurin also noted that the frame house did not have the weight or require the special bracing of a brick or stone house.

Ben and his father, Gary, are partners in Zurin Masonry and Roofing, so they have the necessary resources and experience to complet the job.

"We plan to do a lot of the work ourselves," said Ben, "so that saves the cost of bringing people in to do the work."

Sarah is finishing up her last year of nursing school. The couple moved into a nearby apartment while their house made the trip. Many of their furnishings remain in the house.

"She even has her dishes still in the cupboard," said Ben's mother, Judy, also of Mount Joy.

Aungst, who has been in the business since 1975, moves 15-20 houses a year, a full-time job. Based in Clearville, Bedford County, Aungst was introduced to the business by his father-in-law, who is also in the house-moving business.

To move a house, movers dig around the entire foundation to make way for place the steel posts. The house is then jacked off of the foundation 10-12 feet.

"We take the foundation out to get the wheels under it. The wheels sit on the basement floor," said Aungst.

The truck bed is then slipped under the house and pulled out by a bulldozer. A slope to the foundation allows the bulldozer to pull the house over the existing hole.

"People usually think the foundation is there when we get there, but it's not. That's finished later," said Aungst.

The Zurin's farmhouse weighs in at approximately 65 tons, but Aungst movers have moved a house weighing 525 tons.

The Zurins are not the first to move an existing home into a development. Aungst has also moved homes away from a wire too close to the house or even moved brand-new houses built too close to a property line.

Most of the moves are short distance. "If it's a lot of miles, the wires are too costly to move," said Aungst. PP&L arrived to cut the wires and allow the house to move across the driveway.

Besides finishing the foundation, the couple plans to build a garage onto the house. Zurin hopes the project will be completed by early December.

deaths in feedlot can be attributed to dust pneumonia," Dr. Morrow-Tesch said. "The level of dust on feedlots can be high, which springs the cattle's immune system into action and keeps it running on a constant basis."

Her research found that dust levels can be reduced by a simple change in feeding time. By nature, cattle want to eat at sunset. When the sun goes down and their feed bunk is empty, cattle find other methods of entertainment. In other words, they frolic in the pens and kick up dirt and manure. For practical reasons, nature and feedlot practices have not always coincided.

The alarm rings early for feed callers, with the first feeding done well before sunrise. When the clock strikes two in the afternoon, the workers have distributed the final ration and are ready to go home. Dr. Morrow-Tesch experimented with feeding times during her three-year-long study, taking away one mid-day feeding and adding one at the day's end. "If feed remained in their bunk at sunset, cattle ate and then rested," she noted. "Not only did their behavior change, but dust levels were also reduced."

In a second study in Lubbock, Texas, Dr. Morrow-Tesch used PVC pipe and cloth to give cattle access to shade, an unusual feature for most feedlots. The cattle reached their target weights 20 days sooner than did cattle without shade — a substantial savings to the producer, and a definite improvement in animal welfare.

"The cattle with shade showed fewer signs of stress. Their body temperature and respiratory rates were lower," Dr. Morrow-Tesch said. "When cattle are hot, they pant and drool; they go off feed. They're expending a lot of unnecessary energy."

More scientific research is needed to develop improved animal welfare guidelines. And some research efforts have surprisingly disproven popular theories. For instance, in a study by ARS, calves exhibited signs of pain after tail docking, while adults showed little response. An animal's mind, Dr. Morrow-Tesch says, is like a big black box. We have to try to understand stand how an animal responds, what creates a fearful situation, and how their environment might be perceived.

"The most important issue in animal welfare today is human-animal interaction," Dr. Morrow-Tesch explained. "How we treat our animals can make all the difference in the world to them. Cattle, like most animals, seem to remember good as well as unfavorable incidents and act accordingly," As Dr. Smith sees it, "Cattle serve all of us and deserve humane treatment. We need to put our best foot forward."

2003 Keystone Futurity

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The Pennsylvania Holstein Association is accepting the 2003 Keystone Holstein 3-Year-Old Futurity entries. The Keystone Holstein Futurity is a project to stimulate interest in breeding and developing outstanding registered Holsteins for production and type regardless of individual herd size. Three nominations are required for each animal that competes. The first payment for the 2003 Futurity is due Dec. 15, 2000. Any breeder may nominate as many heifer calves as they wish. There is a guaranteed purse of $500 to the winner.

Any registered Holstein female of 87 percent or higher bred and born in Pennsylvania between Sept. 1, 1999 and Aug. 31, 2000 is eligible for the Keystone Holstein Futurity.

First payment of $3 per head with nomination paid by Dec. 15, 2000, second payment of $11 per head paid by Sept. 15, 2001, third payment of $20 per head paid by Sept. 15, 2002.

All futurity monies shall be used only for futurity purposes. The purse in this event will be divided with 50 percent or at least $500 awarded to the first place animal. The remainder will be divided among those competitors who show in the 2003 Futurity Class.

All nomination fees are committed to the purse. No refunds will be made whether an animal competes or eligibility is discontinued.

Entries are due for the 2003 Keystone Futurity by Dec. 15, 2000.

Agriculture Department Expands Plastic Recycling Program

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — State Agriculture Secretary Samuel E. Hayes Jr. announced the expansion of the Plastic Pesticide Container Recycling Program with the purchase of a granulator to shred plastic pesticide containers.

Hayes demonstrated the new equipment recently for agriculture officials, local growers, and Pesticide Advisory Board members.

The acquisition of this truck-mounted granulator will allow the Plastic Pesticide Container Recycling Program to operate more efficiently by reducing the number of times the containers are handled. Also, the program no longer will be dependent on outside contractors for granulation services.

Hayes said more than 75,000 containers have been returned this year for recycling. This converts more than 70,000 pounds of plastic and represents a 25 percent increase from last year. Only No. 2 High Density Polyethylene containers are accepted into the program.

"Growers in Pennsylvania are, and always have been, good stewards of the land and environment and are doing their part to reduce the negative environmental impact of disposing of these plastic containers by land filling or open burning," Hayes said. "The ultimate goal of the program is to make recycling opportunities available to all pesticide users by conveniently locating dropoff sites across the commonwealth."

There are 64 locations in 38 counties. This network of collection locations provides individuals the opportunity to recycle their clean, rinsed plastic containers. Before being accepted, all containers are inspected on site to insure that they have been properly rinsed and cleaned. Clean containers then are stored in a secure facility at the site to await granulation.

In 1994, the Department of Agriculture started the Plastic Pesticide Container Recycling Program to reduce the negative environmental impact of disposing of waste plastic pesticide containers. The statewide program collects waste pesticide containers and reduces them into chips for remanufacture into a number of end-use products.

Hayes said that, while approved end-uses include new pesticide containers, plastic industrial pallets, speed bumps, parking lot bumpers and fence posts, many other uses are being explored.

To find the nearest Pesticide Plastic Container Recycling Program collection location, contact a Department of Agriculture regional office, contact the County Penn State Cooperative Extension Office, access the Department of Agriculture's Website through the PA PowerPort at www.state.pa.us, or visit the Pesticide Education homepage at www.pested.psu.edu/pdaprofr.html.

Pennsylvania Extension 4-H Agents Receive Communication Awards

tional audiences in existing 4-H opportunities, to strengthen collaborations with the Juvenile Detention Center, and the creation of new marketing tools in support of 4-H programming earned her the award.

The Blue Ribbon Award was presented to Melissa Whetzel, 4-H Coordinator, Greene County, who was recognized for her outstanding program development in adult in teen leadership, school enrichment programming, and life skill development through animal science curriculums. This award is given to an agent with three to seven years of 4-H and youth development programming experience.

The Clover Award was presented to Becky Miller, a volunteer 4-H leader from Lancaster County. The Clover Award recognizes an individual who is not a member of the association, but who is making significant contributions to the 4-H and youth development program at the county, regional, and state levels. Becky Miller was honored for her efforts as a key leader in the Lancaster County 4-H horse program, 4-H Leader's Advisory Council, and 4-H Development Fund Board.

The Distinguished Service Award was presented posthumously to William Hosler, Montour County and was accepted by his wife, Heidi in recognition of his contributions to 4-H programming. Bill had been a 4-H Agent in Huntingdon and Mercer Counties.

Jan Scholl, state specialist in 4-H Family Living and Curriculum Development was recognized for 25 Years of Service to the 4-H youth development program.

Helaine Brown, Montgomery County 4-H Agent, received the Search for Excellence in Teen Programming Award. Helaine's Teen Parent Conference is designed to empower teens to make healthy decisions regarding themselves and their babies. Youth who participated in the conference learned how to budget and manage money, how to use car seats properly, the dangers of smoking during pregnancy, and important safety information to prevent poisoning and crib accidents.

The state Natural Resources/Environmental Stewardship Award was presented to Helaine Brown, Montgomery County. She assisted, a 4-H volunteer leader with the Ambler 4-H club through a series of environmental biology and wildlife 4-H projects as the club collaborated with other natural resource agencies both in and out of Montgomery County.

The state award for Search for Excellence in Teen Programming Team Award was presented to 4-H Agents; Liesel Dreisbach, Phyllis Laufer, and Paul Shealer. The team has designed a 4-H Camp Counselor Training for teens. Teens learned about youth development, risk management, and health emergencies.

The state award for Excellence in Teamwork was presented to Extension Agents; Susan Taylor, Cindy Arblaster, Brack Barr, Joann Logan, Carol Schurman, Cynthia Searight, Melissa Whetzel, Jean Bash, Robert Stout, and Cindy Javor. The team designed "Farming Moooooving Through Time," the theme of the 1999 Southwest Regional 4-H Camp. The camp educational programming featured workshops related to the theme in addition to campfire evening programs. The program initiated collaborations with Extension specialists, master gardeners, and local farmers. By the end of the week, campers were exposed to many different aspects of agriculture of the past and present.

The Pennsylvania Association of Extension 4-H Agents awards and recognition program encourages its members and others involved with 4-H and youth development programming to strive for excellence in program development and delivery.

After investigating companies involved in the Business-to-Business (B2B) electronic meat market. Cattle Buyers Weekly concluded that there is considerable variety and that, in fact, there may be a place for several entities serving different parts of the market.

According to CBW editor Steve Kay, the companies that will succeed are the ones with the strongest technical platform and the ability to adapt them to the specific needs of customers.

Sellers will be attracted to online trading with low transaction fees, which could save the industry millions of dollars annually.

One such company, FoodUSA.com, announced it had achieved $10 million in closed transactions only 46 days after the launch of the company's online meat and poultry exchange.

Food USA.com has attracted over 1,000 registrants to its neutral bid/ask exchange, averaging daily product postings of over $15 million. Food USA.com, founded in 1999 in Madison, WI, has a "strategic partnership" with the American Meat Institute.

Major packers such as IBP and Excel have indicated an interest in on-line trading of meat products. ConAgra has developed software to help buyers determine the type of cuts to purchase and "comparison shop."

Electronic marketing also seems to be catching on in the cattle business. EMerge recently announced the purchase of auction markets in Texas and Kentucky.

The Texas purchase was of a market selling 180,000 feeder cattle annually which developed a "preconditioning" program and offered cattle sorted by load with a maximum 75-pound variation.

At a recent Beef Quality Assurance meeting, it was reported that one large feed yard in the Texas panhandle has reduced its workforce by half after purchasing the sorted, preconditioned calves.

There were fewer problems with health, the cattle did not need to be treated on arrival, fewer cattle were in the sick pens, there was less sorting and, because of the uniformity, the number of rations was reduced from 12 to four. The office manager was reported as resigning as there wasn't much there for her to do.

After Visit, American Farm Bureau President Seeks Help For N.Y. Growers

GLENMONT, N.Y. — In a successful effort to draw national attention to the devastating results of bad weather and low commodity prices, New York Farm Bureau, the state's largest general farm advocacy organization, hosted American Farm Bureau Federation President Bob Stallman on a tour of western New York.

Western New York is a major center for apple production in the country. At a press conference at Orbaker's Fruit Farm in Williamson, N.Y., later in the day, county Farm Bureau leaders discussed the need for public support of local farmers by purchasing local fresh fruit and vegetables.

The need for federal assistance for our growers who are often excluded from direct assistance was discussed as well. As a result of this visit, Stallman will be looking further into the current conditions of the apple industry.

"In order to determine the extent of the problem nationwide and the measures Farm Bureau needs to examine to correct this problem, I am calling a meeting via conference call to discuss the apple situation and outlook in greater detail," said Stallman.

In recent years, disaster relief activities have not been coordinated to pass along assistance to those who need it most. The majority of federal disaster relief funds have been designed for "program crops," such as wheat, soybeans and corn grain, none of which are major crops in New York State. New York is the nation's second leading state for apple production, with apple crops being the state's largest cash crop. Adequate relief funds are needed in order to keep the apple producers in business here in New York.

"It truly was an honor to have President Stallman visiting here in New York," said John W. Lincoln, New York Farm Bureau president. "With the challenges that farmers in this state are dealing with every day, from severe weather to low commodity prices to unwarranted raids from the INS, having President Stallman view these challenges first hand is invaluable. The evidence of President Stallman's support can be seen in his investigating the needs of apple growers in New York and around the country, directly after touring farms in our state."

The visit included stops at several farms and a meeting with growers from around the region. President Stallman also participated in the ribbon cutting ceremony for the Western New York Resource Center, Batavia, N.Y., and attended the Ontario County Farm Bureau Annual meeting that evening.

USDA Seeks Nominations For National Fluid Milk Board

WASHINGTON D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture is asking dairy processors and other interested parties to nominate candidates for the National Fluid Milk Processor Promotion Board.

The Secretary of Agriculture will appoint seven individuals from those nominated to succeed members whose terms expire May 31, 2001. Newly appointed or reappointed members will serve 3-year terms from June 1, 2001, through May 31, 2004.

Kathleen A. Merrigan, administrator of USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, said, "AMS encourages all eligible women, minorities, and persons with disabilities to serve and participate in its committee and board activities. It is USDA's policy that membership on industry-governed boards and committees accurately reflect the diversity of individuals served by the programs."

The National Fluid Milk Processor Promotion Board was established by the Fluid Milk Promotion Act of 1990 to develop and administer a coordinated program of advertising and education to promote fluid milk products. Of the Board's 20 members, 15 represent geographic regions and 5 are at-large members. The at-large members must include at least three fluid milk processors and at least one member of the general public. Currently, there are two members of the general public serving on the Board.

The national fluid milk program is financed by a mandatory 20-cent per hundredweight assessment on fluid milk processors who process and market more than 500,000 pounds of fluid milk products per month in the contiguous 48 states and the District of Columbia.

USDA will accept nominations for board representation in five geographic regions and for two at-large positions. Nominees must be active owners or employees of a fluid milk processor for all regional positions and at least one at-large position. The other at-large position may be filled by a member of the general public. The geographic regions are: Region 1 (Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, and Vermont); Region 4 (Georgia, North Carolina, and South Carolina); Region 7 (Michigan, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, and Wisconsin); Region 10 (Texas); and Region 13 (Idaho, Montana, Oregon, Washington, and Wyoming). No fluid milk processor shall be represented on the board by more than three members.

Fluid milk processors and others may submit nominations for regions in which they are located or market fluid milk and for at-large members.

. To nominate an individual, please submit a copy of the nomination form and a signed background form for each nominee by Dec. 15. Forms should be sent to: Promotion and Research Branch, Dairy Programs, AMS, USDA, 1400 Independence Ave, SW, Stop 0233, Room 2958-S, Washington, D.C. 20250-0233. To obtain forms or additional information, call (202) 720-6909.

'Pseudorabies-Free' Status

USDA, accredited veterinarians, and swine producers for working hard to make the announcement possible.

Dr. Lynne Siegfried, USDA Animal Plant Health Inspection Service's Veterinary Services, said, "The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture worked hard with USDA and producers to eliminate pseudorabies from its swine industry.

"This marks a significant advance for the commonwealth of Pennsylvania in the national and international agricultural communities."

Pseudorabies is a viral disease in swine that affects the nervous and reproductive systems of swine. Pseudorabies has threatened the viability of the swine industry since the 1980s. The last pseudorabies-infected swine farm was released from quarantine in March 1999.

After one year without any new pseudorabies cases, Pennsylvania became eligible to apply for Level V "Pseudorabies-Free Status" in the National State-Federal Industry Pseudorabies Eradication Program. Pennsylvania's swine industry now can send swine without testing to any state in the nation.

N.Y. Farm Bureau Foundation For Agricultural Education Distributes Information Calendar

GLENMONT, N.Y. — The New York Farm Bureau Foundation for Agricultural Education, Inc. (NYFBFAE) has recently distributed an agricultural education calendar for third grade classrooms across the state.

Each day of the week highlights an interesting agricultural fact or a bit of humor. The calendar was designed to spark the interest of children in farming and the impact of agriculture on our daily lives.

The Foundation's mission is to inform and educate all New Yorkers regarding agriculture and to increase the understanding between the farm and non-farm public. This calendar is just one example of how the Foundation accomplishes those goals.

The NYFBFAE is confident that this project will promote its mission by creating an important resource for use in agricultural education. Other examples of NYFBFAE's projects include the distribution of agricultural videos on farm safety, agriculture's impact on communities and economics, and children's topics; awarding grants to the many agricultural organizations around the state that contribute to the public's knowledge of agriculture; and the preparation of educational displays for fairs and exhibits.

USDA To Provide $325 Million To Help Bridge Digital Divide

WASHINGTON, D.C. — U.S. Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman recently announced that USDA is accepting applications for $325 million in loans and grants for telecommunications projects that will bring improved education and medical services to rural areas. The funds are being made available through USDA's Rural Development Distance Learning and Telemedicine (DLT) Program.

"As a part of the technological innovation legacy of this administration, the DLT program is giving us a clear view to a better future for rural education and health care service," said Glickman. "With $102 million invested in more than 383 projects since 1993, this program has improved the educational opportunities for thousands of students and provided better quality health care to rural citizens served by more than 1000 hospitals and rural health care clinics."

The Rural Utilities Service of USDA Rural Development is accepting applications for the following funds: $15 million in grants, $200 million in loans, and $110 million for grant/loan combinations. The later will include $10 million in grants and $100 million in loans.

With distance learning, students in isolated rural schools can participate in virtual field trips or take college preparatory and foreign language classes. Telemedicine projects enable rural patients to be examined by doctors in distant locations, bringing better health care service to remote communities and saving time, money, and even lives.

Applications for grants must be postmarked no later than March 2, 2001. Applications for loans or loan/grant applications will be accepted until Sept. 30, 2001.

Additional details, along with regulations and application guide, are available on the web at http://www.usda.gov/rus/dlt/dlml.htm. The telephone contact is (202) 690-4493 and the fax number is (202) 720-1051. Applications are to be submitted to the USDA Rural Utilities Service, 1400 Independence Avenue, SW, Mail Stop 1550, Washington, D.C. 20250-1550. Indicate attention to the Director, Advanced Services Division, Telecommunications Program.

Morgan Named Associate Dean For Del. Agriculture, Natural Resources

NEWARK, Del. — Dr. Robin W. Morgan has been named associate dean for research in the College of Agriculture and Natural Resources and associate director of the Agricultural Experiment Station at the University of Delaware.

She will provide leadership, guidance, and coordination for the college's research program as well as stimulate multidisciplinary research, support graduate education, and develop grantsmanship support services.

An international authority on Marek's Disease, a virus-induced cancer of chickens, Morgan joined UD's animal and food sciences faculty in 1985. She has been a professor of molecular biology since 1996.

In 1997, she was graduated from Meredith College in Raleigh, N.C., with a bachelor's degree in biology. She received her doctorate, also in biology, from Johns Hopkins University in 1982.

She did postdoctoral work in biochemistry from 1982 to 1985 at the University of California at Berkeley.

The assistant chair of the department of animal and food sciences for the past seven years, Morgan also has served on the management team for the Center for Agricultural Biotechnology and has helped develop the mission and vision for the Delaware Biotechnology Institute.

In addition to her administrative duties, Morgan will maintain an active research program. Her research interests center on the molecular biology of Marek's Disease virus, a herpes virus that causes infectious T-cell lymphomas in chickens. Specific research projects include understanding the molecular mechanisms that lead to transformation of T cells by the virus, examining the immunological responses that result in vaccine-induced protection from lymphoma formation, and developing vaccines to control Marek's Disease.

In July, Morgan and colleague Joan Burnside were awarded a $950,000 National Research Initiative grant from USDA to expand the development of an expressed sequence tag database of the chicken genome (http://www.chickest.udel.edu). In addition to mentoring graduate students, she has taught an undergraduate interdisciplinary course and laboratory, "Principles of Animal and Plant Genetics." Morgan has published extensively in the Journal of Virology and other publications.

Pair natural materials with antiques such as a 1930's carpenter's tray and an early 1900's apple cider jug.

Use weeds, plants, and vegetables to showcase autumn's beauty. Many of these materials need no preservation or special preparation for display. Master Gardener Jane Yocum shows how she and other Master Gardeners combine harvest and natural materials for indoor decorating.

Showcase Autumn's Harvest Indoors

Lebanon County Flower Club stocked their table with the "makings" of arrangements for visitors to purchase and create their own at home.

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Some of the most dramatic home decorating costs little but time and an eye to take advantage of the season's dying harvest.

Ideas abounded at the annual Lebanon County holiday program conducted last week. In addition to on-stage demonstrations, the Lebanon Expo Center was set up with many eye-catching displays by the workshop presenters.

Always a crowd favorite is the display by the county's Master Gardeners. This year was no exception. The display showed how natural materials placed in a dining room is easy to do and quite stunning. Because it is easier to grasp ideas by seeing than by reading, the photographs on this page offer a glimpse of the possibilities you can create in your own home.

You do not need to use exactly the same materials to create an attractive room. These displays jumpstart ideas. The secret is to use what you have at your disposal. Search your attic, basement, and the outdoors for items to display.

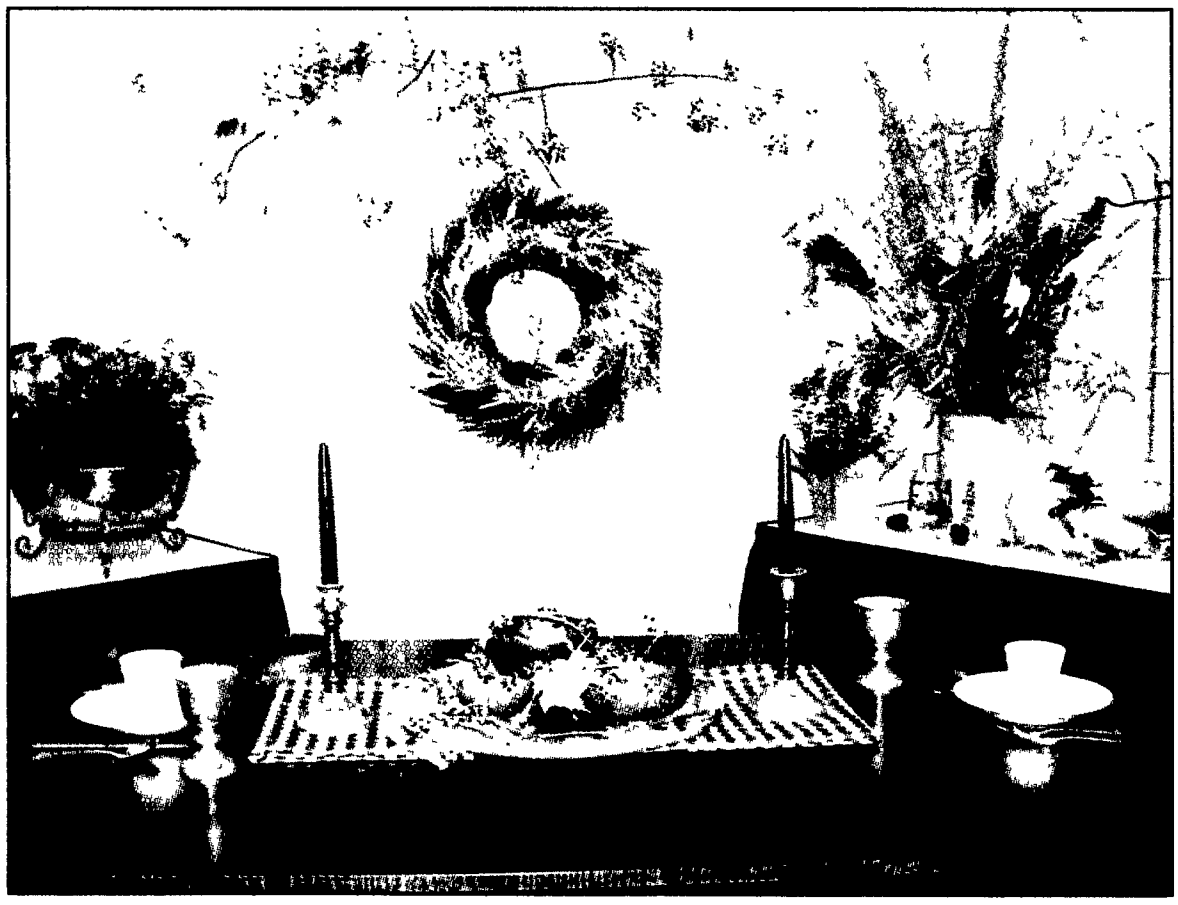
Items need not be in top condition or of value to incorporate into breathtaking displays of nature's harvest.

"I like old, dirty stuff best," said Judy Bahney who was responsible for providing display items such as a 1930's carpenter's tray, an early 1900's cider jug, and a room divider created with weatered wooden shutters.

Although frost has killed most

(Turn to Page B3)

The simplest arrangements are often the most dramatic. Notice the spray of bittersweet draped across the weathered shutters, an assortment of dried weeds stuffed inside a sprinkling can, and the gourds, Indian corn, and dried leaves placed strategically for accent.



Preserve Fall Leaves

Everyone loves watching leaves change from summer green to the fantastic colors of fall. Preserving these beautiful gifts from nature is not a difficult process.

One of the simplest methods is a glycerin and water solution.

Use one part of glycerin to two parts water. Glycerin can be purchased at any local pharmacy. The glycerin and water solution should be placed in a large flat pan.

The leaves should then be put in a single layer so they are completely submerged in the liquid mixture. The leaves need to be kept in this liquid from two to six days.

The process is complete when the leaves have absorbed the liquid and are soft and pliable. Excess liquid can be removed with a soft cloth.

The leaves should remain indefinitely with this method.

of the flowers and vegetables, it is not too late collect weeds, pods, and vines that have dried naturally in fields, gardens, and backyards. Many roadside stands also offer natural materials at a nominal cost.

Debbie Hartman and Sarah Vakili, both Master Gardeners, presented a workshop on pumpkins, corn, and beans, which they dubbed "The Three Sisters."

"These 'Three Sisters' were not brought to this country from another country but are native plants that sustained Native Americans and the colonists," Hartman said.

Corn was of such value that it is reported to have been sold in Williamsburg for today's eqivalent of $30 a bushel.

The presentation included a history of the "Three Sisters" and ideas for using them in recipes and crafts.

Leather Britches

Today, a popular craft, which the Master Gardeners referred to as leather britches, is stringing the green beans with red chili peppers and miniature ears of ornamental corn."

To string beans, chili peppers, and ornamental corn, thread a craft needle with a double string of quilting thread, fishing line or floss. Tie a knot at one end.

Pierce a green bean in the center and pull it to the end of the string until it rests on the knot. Wrap the string around the bean once to secure it; since this is the bottom of the string of vegetables, you don't want it to fall out.

String 10 beans.

Put a 2-inch piece ear of miniature corn on top of peppers. String 10 whole bay leaves on top of corn.

Repeat these layers three more times, finally adding an extra 10 beans on top.

Hartman and Vakili also showed how to decorate a pumpkin with pressed leaves, a looped cornhusk wreath and a miniature Indian corn starburst wreath. For those who are interested in recreating these crafts, the following books are recommended: "Gifts and Crafts from the Garden," by Maggie Oster, and "Handmade Gifts from a Country Garden."

Spiced Pumpkin And Pecan Butter

29-ounce can solid pack pumpkin with ½ cup water OR 3½-4 cups pumpkin puree prepared from scratch
3 tablespoons strained fresh orange juice
3 tablespoons strained fresh lemon juice
1½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground allspice
¼ teaspoon ground ginger
Pinch ground cloves
⅓ cup pecans or walnuts, lightly toasted (optional)

Combine a heavy-bottomed stainless-steel or other nonreactive saucepan the pumpkin (and water if using canned pumpkin) orange zest, sugar, orange juice, lemon juice, cinnamon, salt, allspice, ginger, and cloves. Bring to a boil over medium-high heat, stirring constantly; lower heat and simmer the mixture, stirring constantly with a wooden spatual, until it has become very thick, about 15 minutes. Sample the butter and add a little more of any or all the spices, (remember the flavors will blossom in storage). Add more sweetening if you desire.

Stir in nuts and continue to cook another 2-3 minutes. Cool and fill attractive jars. Store up to four weeks in refrigerator. Yield approximately four cups.

Note: To toast pecans or walnuts: Spread the shelled nuts in a baking pan and bake about 5 minutes in 350 degree oven, stirring several times (they scorch easily). Bake just until they are slightly toasted and fragrant, not actually browned. Cool nuts to regain crispness before using them.

Serve with cream cheese on bagels or bread.

Dehydrating Apples Step-By-Step

Many people like to dry apples to eat or to use in holiday decorating. Here are step-by-step instructions from Alltrista Corporation.

• Read recipe instructions through before beginning process. Assemble equipment and ingredients before starting. Follow guidelines for recipe preparation, drying, and storage. Do not make changes in recommended guidelines.

• A commercial or homemade electric dehydrator is the best method for drying food. An electric dehydrator yields the most reliable and consistent results.

• Select fresh, high-quality, fully-ripe apples for drying. Wash, peel, and core apples. Cut into uniform, ¼-½-inch rings or slices.

• To prevent darkening, pretreat apple rings or slices by dipping into an antioxidant solution. Use 1 cup lemon or lime juice to 1 quart water. Or, use a commercial antioxidant following manufacturer's instructions. Do not allow apples to remain in dipping solution more than 10 minutes. Drain before drying.

• Arrange apple rings or slices evenly on dehydrator trays, allowing space between pieces for air circulation. Dry at 130-135-degrees until pliable. Drying time will vary depending on the moisture content of the apples, quality of the apples, volume being dried at one time, method of drying and the climate.

• Store dehydrated apples in an airtight, moisture-proof container. Home canning jars make excellent storage containers. Store in a cool, dry, dark place. Cooler temperatures, 50-70-degrees will help prolong shelf life.

On Being a Farm Wife (and other hazards)

Joyce Bupp

Tidy-up time is upon us.

If you doubt that, just look around at all the folks raking leaves.

Grass growth has slowed, weeds have gone dead or dormant — or to seed, as in the case of far too many in the flower beds — and everyone is bustling around trying to tidy up all those loose ends of summer past. And, if your place is anything like ours, about the time you have one set of loose ends neatly tied corralled, a bunch more have unraveled.

Loads of small bales of old grass hay sit abandoned around the equipment parking area below the house, awaiting an unloading crew to hitch them to a tractor, haul them to the barn and stack them away. This reserve supply of bedding was acquired at a local farm sale, and needed to be promptly removed from the property. Moving them off the sold property was the haste factor in getting them loaded onto the wagons; stacking them away is farther down the tidy-up priority list.

Other pieces of equipment keep them company, all waiting their turn behind that ultimate fall clean-up chore-finishing the soybean and corn harvests and seeding the last acres of fall-planted grain.

Those major tasks completed, tidy-up priorities will shuffle around to hauling out loads of bedding pack manure accumulated through the summer and "graduating" all the heifers and calves to next-size-up pens.

Frames and coverings of windows in those various heifer facilities must be fastened in and closed up. Or fixed. Or, in some cases, invented. And homes found for the oversized, summer-heat barn fans.

Though some leaves are piling up around the yard and buildings, raking them is not a tidy-up priority here. Our Norway maples surrounding the house are the last trees to turn color, often still holding tight to some foliage at Thanksgiving. Weather permitting, they'll ultimately be "raked" with the lawn mower and the residue blown into the perennial border. Piles collecting in corners will be left to provide snugly winter napping nooks for the cats. By April, their fluffiness will have compacted into damp layers easily forked for disposal.

After tripping over a garden hoe and spade for the umpteenth time, I finally moved them from the basement porch to the storage shed. A short-handled, square-edged shovel got a reprieve from storage when I remembered how ideal a tool it is for snow removal.

Maybe if it's kept real handy, we won't need it too much.

Lawn chairs have been turned upside down for storage on the deck, except for a few at the little table where we enjoy lunch on sunny days. Several plants need to be lifted and potted, semi-hardy things which thrive in fall's warm days and cool nights, but which won't make it through the single-digit stuff. Warm, sunny days of recent weeks have kept any urgency about tackling them at bay, a procrastination I'll regret for sure some harsh, raw, damp, finger-numbing day soon.

Lack of a hard, killing frost has only added to my ho-hum attitude about fall cleanup. My source for winter potting soil is still buried under a jungle-like tangle of orange and yellow nasturtiums. Vigorous, lingering weeds still obscure the row of defunct gladioli whose bulbs must be lifted. And the dahlias defiantly push out blooms above partially-blackened foliage, discouraging my intentions to yank them for storage.

Our garden hose remains curling around the grass, because there are containers which still need watered regularly. The guinea's temporary wire shelter can't be removed yet, because they aren't totally conditioned to roost at a fox-proof spot at night.

In due time, the raking and storing and tidying-up will all get done. Mid-April, at the latest.

Or we'll have a big, early snow.

Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser

It is difficult for me to realize how much the world has changed in the last 50 years.

When we flew to Indiana and had our schedules changed due to bad weather, cellular phones popped out everywhere. It seemed as though half of the people were walking around with a phone held to their ear. It certainly made it easier for other people to know about their change of plans.

We did not even have a phone in our house when our barn burned down in the 1940s. So, a hired man drove over a mile to find a phone to call the fire company. Later we paid the phone company to have poles put in for that distance.

Another area of change is in the field of exercise. People pay for a private instructor to help their children get enough exercise and adults go to gymnasiums. When I was a youngster, we surely got our exercise. We chased cows to a distant pasture and brought them home again at night. We used a hand pump to fill an iron trough with water for the steers and six horses. Those animals could surely empty a trough in no time. We worked in the fields beside our father and ran many errands for our mother.

The other Saturday morning I decided to go to our grandson's last football game. It was a cold and windy day to sit outside from 8:30 to 11:30. Here again, the cell phones were put into use — "Bring a blue coat along for me when you come," said a woman to her husband. The good part about the day was that our team won, but the bad part was that I did not get to see our grandson play as he had previously hurt his leg and was not allowed to play.

There were so many little boys on the field suited-up in expensive gear. To even join the team is costly, but they did get their exercise. Now our grandson didn't really need that as he lives on a farm and helps with the farm work. Although, he was probably the only one who lives on a farm as our township has many suburbs.

CHICKEN CACCIATORE

3 tablespoons all-purpose flour, or more as needed
2 tablespoons olive oil
5 shallots, finely chopped
3 cloves garlic, finely chopped
28-ounce can crushed tomatoes
2 tablespoons tomato paste
¼ teaspoon dried leaf oregano
¼ teaspoon dried leaf thyme
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon chicken broth granules
1 bay leaf
2 cans (4-ounces each) sliced mushrooms
Chopped fresh parsley, for garnish

Working in batches, combine chicken pieces and flour in plastic bag; shake to coat chicken. Remove from bag; shake off excess flour.

Heat oil in large nonstick skillet over medium heat. When oil is hot, add pieces of chicken, working in batches if necessary, and brown on one side. Turn chicken over. Add shallots and garlic. Brown other side of chicken.

Add tomatoes, tomato paste, oregano, thyme, lemon juice, chicken broth granules, and bay leaf. Reduce heat; cover and simmer 30 minutes or until chicken falls loosely from boen. Remove bay leaf and discard. Add mushrooms; gently heat through. Garnish with chopped parsley. Serve with noodles if desired.

Deefriield St., NJ

CHICKEN POT PIE

3 cups mixed vegetables, cooked, drained
1½ cups cooked chicken, cubed
1 can cream of chicken soup
¼ teaspoon thyme or sage
2 9-inch pie crusts
Preheat oven to 350 degrees.

In medium bowl, combine mixed vegetalbes, chicken, soup, and seasoning; mix well. Fit one pie crust into 9-inch pie pan; pour vegetable mixture into pie crust. Top with remaining crust, crimp edges to seal, and prick top with fork. Bake 30 minutes, or until crust is golden brown and filling is hot. Allow pie to cool slightly before cutting into wedges.

Servings: 4-6. Cook time 30 minutes.

ROMAN CHICKEN

1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1 pound boneless, skinless chicken breasts, cut into ¼-inch thick strips
1 medium onion, chopped
1 tablespoon Italian seasoning
3 cups cooked rice
14½-ounce can Italian-style stewed or diced tomatoes
½ cup grated parmesan cheese

Heat oil in large skillet over medium-high heat until hot. Add chicken, onion, and Italian seasoning; cook and stir 5-7 minutes or until chicken begins to brown and onion is tender. Add rice and tomatoes; cook 2-3 minutes or until thoroughly heated. Sprinkle with cheese; serve. Makes 4 servings.

USA Rice Council

BEEF AND PASTA SKILLET DINNER

1½ pounds ground beef
14½-ounce can beef broth
14½-ounce can Italian-style diced tomatoes
2 cups uncooked bow tie pasta
¾ cup parmesan cheese, divided

In a large skillet, brown ground beef over medium-high heat 6-8 minutes or until beef is no longer pink, breaking up into ¾-inch pieces. Remove beef with slotted spoon; pour off drippings.

In same skillet, add broth, tomatoes, and pasta, pushing pasta into liquid. Bring to a boil; reduce heat to medium. Cook, uncovered, 15 minutes stirring frequently. Add zucchini, continue cooking 5 minutes or until pasta is tender.

Return beef to skillet and stir in ½ cup cheese; heat through. Sprinkle with remaining cheese. 4 servings.

PAPRIKA PORK STEW

1 pound boneless pork shoulder, cubed
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons paprika
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
½ cup water
1 medium onion, cut in half lengthwise and sliced
4 small red new potatoes, quartered
2 tablespoons water
½ cup sour cream

Combine flour, paprika, and salt; mix well. Dip pork in flour mixture. Reserve excess flour mixture. Brown pork in oil in large skillet or Dutch oven. Pour off drippings. Add ½ cup water and onion, cover tightly and simmer 30 minutes. Add potatoes and continue cooking, covered, 20-30 minutes or until pork and potatoes are tender. Combine reserved flour with 2 tablespoons water; stir into pork mixture and cook until thickened, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat and stir in sour cream. Serves 4.

AUNT FANNIE'S DINNER

1½ pounds ground beef
½ onion, chopped
1 teaspoon garlic powder
Salt and pepper to taste
1 (8 ounce) can tomato sauce
1 cup stewed, diced tomatoes
1 (15 ounce) can whole kernel corn, drained
1½ cups elbow macaroni

In a large skillet over medium heat, saute the ground beef for 5 minutes. Add the onion and saute for 5 to 10 more minutes. Season with garlic powder, salt and pepper to taste. Add the tomato sauce, stewed OR diced tomatoes, corn and macaroni. Stir well and allow to heat through, about 5 to 7 minutes.

Prep Time: 10 Minutes
Cook Time: 10 Minutes

A quick and easy one skillet dinner. This goes great with garlic bread and a salad.

BBQ PORK SANDWICHES

1 (14 ounce) can beef broth
3 pounds boneless pork ribs
1 (18 ounce) bottle barbeque sauce

Pour can of beef broth into slow cooker and add boneless pork ribs. Cook on high heat for 4 hours or until meat shreds easily. Preheat oven to 350 degrees F (175 degrees C).

Remove meat and shred with two forks. It will seem that it's not working right away, but it will.

In a dutch oven or skillet stir the meat and barbecue sauce together. Heat in oven for 30 minutes or until hot.

Makes 8 servings
Prep Time: 15 Minutes
Cook Time: 4 Hours 30 Minutes

This is so easy & very tasty. Serve on buns with french fries or potato chips.

MEXICALI VEGETABLE SOUP

½ cup chopped onion
3½ cups beef broth
1 (15 ounce) can white beans, drained
1 cup sliced zucchini
1 cup sliced carrots
1 (1.25 ounce) package taco seasoning

In a large saucepan over medium high heat, combine the ground beef and onion and saute for 5 minutes, or until beef is browned. Drain excess fat.

Pour in the beef broth, beans, zucchini, carrots and taco seasoning. Bring to a boil, reduce heat to low, cover and simmer for 15 to 20 minutes, or until vegetables are to desired tenderness.

Makes 6 to 8 servings
Cook Time: 25 Minutes

Soup brings a family together. Make this soup and spend more time enjoying dinner than preparing it! This recipe combines ground beef with beans and mixed vegetables in a flavorful beef broth. Add a loaf of hearty bread and a salad, and you've got a well-rounded dinner that everyone will enjoy.

DEBDOOZIE'S BLUE RIBBON CHILI

2 pounds ground beef
½ onion, chopped
1 teaspoon ground black pepper
½ teaspoon garlic salt
2½ cups tomato sauce
1 (8 ounce) jar salsa
4 tablespoons dry chili seasoning mix
1 (15 ounce) can light red kidney beans
1 (15 ounce) can dark red kidney beans

In a large saucepan over medium heat, combine the ground beef and the onion and saute for 10 minutes, or until meat is browned and onion is tender. Drain grease, if desired.

Add the ground black pepper, garlic salt, tomato sauce, salsa, chili seasoning mix and kidney beans. Mix well, reduce heat to low and simmer for at least an hour.

Makes 6 to 8 servings
Prep Time: 10 Minutes
Cook Time: 1 Hour

This is the tastiest, easiest chili recipe you'll ever find. I recommend serving it with sliced jalapeno chile peppers and crackers or cornbread.

Featured Recipe

One-dish dinners solve many dilemmas when it comes to deciding what's for dinner. For a quick, easy-to-prepare meal, try Cowboy Beans and Rice from the USA Rice Council.

COWBOY BEANS AND RICE

1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1 medium onion, chopped
1 medium-size green bell pepper, chopped
3 cups cooked rice
2 15- to 16-ounce cans pinto beans, drained, rinsed
¼ cup barbecue sauce

Heat oil in large skillet over medium-high heat until hot. Add onion and green pepper, cook and stir 3-5 minutes or until tender. Add rice, beans, and barbecue sauce. Simmer 5-7 minutes or until thoroughly heated. Makes 4 servings.

For a meaty main dish, add ½ pound sliced smoked sausage or 4 frankfurters, sliced.

Consuming Thoughts

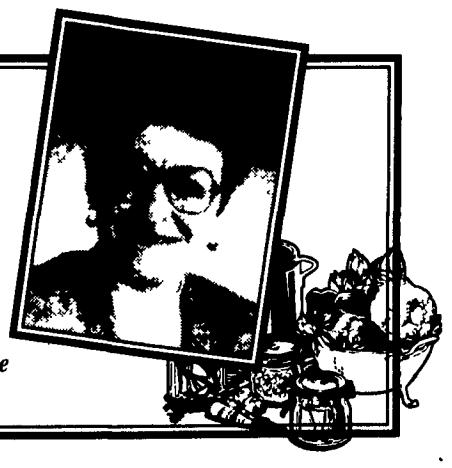
Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.



The first Thanksgiving was a celebration to give thanks for the bountiful harvest. Today, Thanksgiving has become the "pigout" holiday, where people enjoy overeating. In fact, Thanksgiving heralds in the holiday season of festivities that usually includes over-indulging in many favorite holiday foods that are high in fat and cholesterol. By the time January comes around, many of us find we have wider waistlines and tighter clothes. It doesn't have to be this way. You can come through this holiday season unscathed by using modified recipes and following these suggestions:

- Don't starve yourself before a big dinner. It is too easy to overeat when you are very hungry.
- Start the meal with clear soup such as chicken or vegetable soup. These relatively low-calorie soups will fill you up so you don't overeat other high calorie foods.
- Take a walk. Walking after a meal can aid digestion and help burn off some of the calories.
- Modify recipes whenever possible. If you must serve creamed dishes, make the sauces without added fat and use evaporated skim milk instead of cream. Try finding alternatives for high fat, high calorie foods. Try reducing the fat or sugar in a recipe. In some recipes, solid shortenings can be replaced by vegetable oil, reducing the amount by ¼ — ⅓ of amount called for in the recipe.
- Plan before you go to a party. Have a cup of soup and a salad just before you go. Try to eat conservative amounts of foods, and drink plenty of water or seltzer. Try these modified recipes of old holiday favorites:

Low-fat, Low Cholesterol Pumpkin Pie
(makes one 9-inch pie, 8 servings)

⅔ cup packed brown sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon ginger
¼ teaspoon cloves
1-½ cups (canned or fresh) pumpkin
1 can evaporated skim milk
3 egg whites, beaten until foamy
1 unbaked pie crust

Mix brown sugar, spices and pumpkin together. Add milk and egg whites and beat until thoroughly mixed. Pour into pastry lined pan. Bake in preheated 400° oven for 45-50 minutes, or until knife inserted near center of pie comes out clean. Calories: 265 per serving.

Half and Half Pie Crust

½ cup whole wheat flour
½ cup white flour
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons margarine
3 tablespoons corn oil
2-3 tablespoons ice water

Mix flour and salt together. Cut in margarine. In a liquid measuring cup, mix the oil and water. Add the oil and water mixture to the dough a little at a time, stirring the dough with a fork. Roll out the dough and fit into a pie plate.

Do You Suffer From Fibromyalgia?

When I was introduced to New Image I was 50 pounds over weight and suffered from fibromyalgia I was so depressed and in pain the majority of the time I was taking steroids and four other medications, one of which made me so 'groggy' I could hardly get out of bed and another gave me ulcers I began taking New Image secretly because I thought my family would make fun of me After a month, I discovered I had lost eight pounds and seven inches Wow! Then it dawned on me, I was feeling better, the depression and pain were gone In two months I was off all medications "I feel SUPERIFIC!" Now, two years later I have lost 43 pounds and 30 inches Thank you New Image for giving me a new life again Judy Swift - Mt Washington, KY

Cook's Question Corner

If you are looking for a recipe but can't find it, send your recipe request to Lou Ann Good, Cook's Question Corner, in care of Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. There's no need to send a self-addressed stamped envelope. If we receive an answer to your question, we will publish it as soon as possible. Check your recipe to make sure you copy the right amounts and complete instructions for making the recipe. Sometimes we receive numerous answers to the same request, but cannot print each one.

Answers to recipe requests should be sent to the same address. You may also e-mail questions and answers to lgood.eph@lnpnews.com

Notice: Several readers write that they have problems accessing this address. The common mistake is that readers are substituting an "i" for the lowercase "l (L)" needed in two places. If you are having problems reaching this address, please check to make sure you are typing a lowercase "l (L)" in both places and not a lower or uppercase "i" or "I."

QUESTION — C. Faus wants to know how to make homemade rice cakes. She writes they are nice for wheat-free diets but expensive to buy.

QUESTION — E. King, Bird-in-Hand, wants the recipe to make a dry mix for yellow cake, and how many cups are used to make a 9x13-inch cake.

QUESTION — Ronda Merritts, Dillsburg, writes that she used many of the cakes baked-in-a-jar recipes printed last year in this paper. The baked cakes were a hit with her Christmas gift giving list. QUESTION — A long time reader is searching for a recipe for maple walnut fudge.

QUESTION — Carol Fulkroad, Millersburg, would like a recipe for frozen yogurt, which can be made in a 1½-quart ice cream freezer

QUESTION — E. H. Martin, New Holland, wants to know if it is possible to make your own frozen bread dough. If so, does it need to rise before freezing or is it shaped and then frozen? A complete recipe would be appreciated.

QUESTION — Vera Moore, Gettysburg, is searching for an oatmeal muffin recipe that had been printed on the large Quaker oatmeal box about eight years ago. The ingredients included applesauce and brown sugar.

QUESTION — Since October is Popcorn Popping Month, N. Kring, Somerset County, would like a recipe for kettle corn, which is a sweetened, salted popcorn sold at county fairs and festivals.

QUESTION — Linda Fletcher wants a recipe for roasted sunflower seeds.

QUESTION — Marsha Wagner, Mount Wolf, wants a recipe for the "Snickers" dessert served at Shady Maple Smorgasbord.

QUESTION — Helen Kofron, Claymont, Del., wants a recipe for ground beef barbecue that tastes like that served at Shady Maple patio.

QUESTION — A reader requested an old recipe for clear bean soup made with fresh pork.

QUESTION — Durwood Tuttle, Knoxville, makes sweet pickles in a crock that he stores in a cellar. About three weeks ago, a gray fuzzy mold formed all over the crock. He washed the crock thoroughly with bleach water but it doesn't keep the mold from forming again. Any help would be appreciated.

QUESTION — Rachel Musser is searching for a spaghetti sauce recipe that tastes similar to Prego pasta sauce (traditional).

ANSWER — Mary Long wanted to know how to make a brine in which to preserve cucumbers during the winter months. Thanks to Mrs. Henry Swarey, Mifflintown, for sending a recipe she used.

Salted Pickles

Put a layer of table salt in a container (crock or any plastic container). Put a layer of fresh slicing-sized cucumbers on the salt, cover with more salt. Add as many layers as you wish. The salt draws the water from the cucumbers, so after a while, they will be in a brine and you can also add fresh cucumbers to the brine.

She was told to lay fresh grape leaves on top so it won't mold. However, mold usually does form on top, but it can be washed off and is not harmful. Put a weight on top to keep the pickles covered with brine.

About 3-4 days before ready to serve, remove the pickles from the brine, dust generously with clean wood ashes and cover liberally with boiling water. Let set at room temperature for 12 hours or more; drain; again cover with boiling water. The next day, rinse your pickles to remove all traces of ash. Add clear water (cold is ok). If the pickles are nice and plump, they may be cut into bite-sized pieces. It may be necessary to change water one or two more times until the pickles taste only slightly salty, then put into a brine of 3 or 4 parts water to 1 part vinegar. Soak until flavored, then serve.

If cucumbers turn mushy soft in the brine, they should be discarded. The pickles will be really wrinkled but still have body.

Sour Pickles

Pack tightly into quart-size canning jars. Add a level tablespoon salt to each quart. Make a brine of 1 part vinegar to 3 parts water. Pour over cucumbers, filling jar only to 1-inch from top. Seal tightly and bring to boiling point in hot water bath.

Some people prefer to add a head of dill and clove of garlic to each quart.

Bessie's Little Pickles

Soak small cucumbers (1-1½-inches) in salted water overnight. Next day for each quart pickles, make a brine of a half quart water and a half quart vinegar. Add 3 whole grains Saccharin for each quart. Boil 3 minutes. Pack into jars and seal in boiling water bath.

Rhoda writes that Bessie would bring these to covered dish meals. The pickles are very good, not real sweet, and on the sour side.

Hazelnut And Apricot Biscotti

4 cups flour
2½ cups sugar
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
6 eggs
2 egg yolks
1 tablespoon vanilla extract
1 cup hazelnuts, toasted, peeled, chopped
1½ cups finely diced dried apricots
2 tablespoons water

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Meanwhile, into large bowl, sift together flour, sugar, baking powder, and salt. In another bowl, beat together five of the eggs, 2 egg yolks, and vanilla. Mix the beaten eggs with the flour mixture and add the hazelnuts and apricots.

On a lightly floured board, knead the dough for 5-7 minutes, or until evenly blended. If the dough is too crumbly to hold together, add a little water. Divide the dough into four parts and roll each of these into a cylinder 2-inches in diameter. Place two cylinders three inches apart on each of two well-greased baking sheets and flatten slightly. Beat the remaining egg with the water and brush each cylinder with the mixture. Bake in the preheated over for 35 minutes, or until set.

Remove from oven and reduce the heat to 325. Diagonally slice the biscotti ¾-inch thick. Spread the slices on the baking sheets and return to oven for 10 minutes, or just until beginning to color. Let cool and store in airtight jar.

Apricot Biscotti

⅓ cup butter
2 teaspoons baking powder
2 eggs
1 teaspoon finely shredded lemon peel
¼ teaspoon almond extract
2 cups flour
¾ cup snipped dried apricots
¾ cup light raisins
1 beaten egg yolk
1 tablespoon milk

Beat butter in mixing bowl with a mixer on medium to high for 30 seconds. Add sugar and baking powder; beat until combined. Beat in as much flour as you can with mixer. Stir in remaining flour and fruit.

Divide dough into thirds. With lightly floured hands, shape each portion into a 12-inch roll. Place rolls 3-inches apart on a lightly greased cookie sheet. Flatten slightly to 1½-inch width. Combine egg yolk and milk. Brush on rolls.

Bake in 375 degree oven for 15-20 minutes or until lightly browned. Cool on cookie sheet for one hour.

Transfer to a cutting board. Cut each loaf crosswise into ⅜-inch thick slices. Lay slices, cut side down, on cookie sheet. Bake at 325 degrees for 5 minutes. Turn slices to the other side and bake 5 minutes more. Remove cookies and cool on wire rack. Makes about 90.

Thanks to Debbie Reynolds, Wrightsville, for sending the following recipe. She writes that it is time consuming to make but well worth the effort.

Almond Cherry Biscotti

2 cups flour
1 cup sugar
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup cold butter, no substitute
2 eggs
1 tablespoon milk
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 cup chopped almonds or walnuts
1 cup halved or candied cherries or dried cranberries
1 cup white chocolate chips (optional)

In a bowl, combine flour, sugar, baking powder, and salt. Cut in butter until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. In another bowl, beat eggs, milk, and vanilla until blended. Stir into dry ingredients until blended. Stir in nuts and fruit or chips. Dough will be crumbly.

Bake at 350 degrees for 30-35 minutes or until golden. Cool 20 minutes. Transfer to cutting board. Cut diagonally with a sharp knife into ¾-inch slices.

Place cut side down on ungreased cookie sheet. Bake 15 minutes. Remove to wire racks to cool.

ANSWER — Pat Hancock, Md., wanted recipes for cookie mix in a jar. Thanks to Debbie Reynolds, for sending several recipes. Continue to look for more recipes in upcoming weeks.

Chewy Choco-Oat-Chip Cookies

¼ teaspoon salt
¼ cup brown sugar
⅞ cup flour
1 cup chocolate chips
⅝ cup oatmeal
¼ cup brown sugar
⅓ cup walnuts
M&M's (optional)
Coconut (optional)

Add:

1 stick butter, softened
1 egg
½ teaspoon baking soda
1 tablespoon milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Add mix from jar. Mix well. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto cookie sheet. Bake at 375 degrees for 9-10 minutes. Makes 2½ dozen.

Make Sure Young Deer Hunters Know Safety Precautions

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — If you're taking a youngster hunting for the first time this year, make sure he or she understands some important safety rules, says Earle Robbins, Tioga County extension director for Penn State Cooperative Extension.

Robbins is a Pennsylvania Game Commission volunteer, a hunting/trapping education instructor and state 4-H shooting sports coordinator for Penn State Cooperative Extension.

"Young people handling firearms need to develop some important habits," says Robbins. "We can instill these habits by instructing them — and more importantly, by setting an example. New hunters, as well as those who have held a hunting license in another state or country, are required to complete a hunter-trapper education program. These individuals also need role models who practice safe hunting skills."

Robbins offers these hunting safety tips:

—Make sure firearms are in good working order, and barrels and chambers are free of obstructions. Guns must be sighted properly and have proper-sized ammunition.

—Familiarize yourself with the hunting site, so that you will know what's beyond your target. "Walk through the hunting grounds before deer season starts," Robbins says. "When you know the area, you can keep livestock and buildings out of the line of fire."

—Assume every firearm is loaded. "When you pick up a gun, the first thing you should do is check it for ammunition," Robbins says. "When you pass a firearm to someone else, leave the action open so there is no chance of it firing."

—Unload guns and leave the actions open when you are transporting them to and from the hunting area.

—Always keep track of where your gun is pointed, and keep your finger off the trigger until it's time to fire at your target. Never aim your gun at anything you do not plan to shoot.

—Know the location of all the members of your hunting group. "Before separating, discuss where each hunter will be standing on watch and who will be walking through the woods," Robbins says.

—Don't shoot until you're absolutely sure of your target. Shooting at a sound or an undefined shape is inviting tragedy. "During deer season, this also means making sure whether the deer is a buck or a doe," Robbins says.

—Unload your gun before climbing trees, scaling fences and logs, or jumping over ditches.

—If you have shot a deer and are preparing to dress it, don't forget to unload your gun.

—Never engage in horseplay using a gun.

Delaware County Child Care Providers Plan 'Togetherness'

SPRINGFIELD (Delaware Co.) — Delaware County Child Care Providers in collaboration with Penn State Cooperative Extension-Delaware County are sponsoring an inservice on Saturday, Dec. 2 from 8-4 at the Delaware County Community College site on MacDade Blvd. in Collingdale. All child care providers, from centers, group, home-based and those providing child care informally to friends and relatives are invited to attend.

The program will provide six hours of training as required by DPW. A choice of 13 educational sessions, including keynote speaker, Frank Aycox, author of "Games We Should Play in School" will be offered during the day along with exhibits and vendors and a chance to network with other child care providers and those providing services. To register, send a check for $25 (one person) or $20 per person (two or more) to Delaware County Cooperative Extension, 20 Paper Mill Road, Smedley Park, Springfield, Pa. 19064. A brochure is available by calling (610) 690-2655. Lunch and continental breakfast will be included. Registration deadline is Nov. 27. Registrations received by Nov. 20 will be eligible for a drawing for dinner for two at the Little Inn restaurant in Media.

Theatre Teaches Good Nutrition

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Combine mystery, action, and fun, and elementary school children grasp nutrition facts and fitness with ease.

A play called "The Prince of the Pyramid" is performing in schools throughout the state and recently appeared at Clay Elementary School.

The touring group, based in Minneapolis, Minn., called National Theatre For Children said its purpose is to teach, entertain, and inspire.

An archeologist and a mummy are the main characters of the play, which is set in the fictitious town of Oak Grove. Residents awake one morning to find a giant pyramid in the middle of the town square. Coincidentally, all the healthy food in town has been replaced with junk food.

Does the mummy have something to do with the missing food and the mysterious pyramid?

The students help solve the mystery while learning about the necessity of eating five fruits and vegetables daily and the part good nutrition and exercise pays in our lives.

Some of the facts include such statements as the following: "Did you know that 90 percent of your bone mass is developed between the ages of 1-18?"

Dairy Council Middle Atlantic funded by local dairy farmers provided the program to promote health and awareness through nutrition education. In Lancaster County alone, more that 10,000 students saw the performance.

Dietz Prepares Food With Deception

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — By popular demand Frances Dietz returned to the annual Lebanon County Holiday program conducted last week.

The freelance home economist is well-known for her novel cooking methods of shortcuts — a dump of this and a dash of that — which she intersperses with humorous anecdotes. Her unique combination results in a laughing audience and spectacular cooking results.

This year, Dietz's formal title for the workshop was "The Mystery of the Hidden Gift," which she translated to mean "something weird inside of each one (recipe)."

The hidden or "weird" ingredients served a purpose — "to give the gift of better health," Dietz said. "The hidden ingredients contain health giving qualities that have been proven over time."

A hidden danger accompanies these unique recipes. If the recipient of the dish is aware of the "weird" ingredient contained therein, they won't eat it.

"Don't let anyone see you prepare these (dishes). Hide any evidence (cans and containers) in the garbage," Dietz said of preparing brownies with Great Northern beans and meatloaf with lentils.

Here are some of her recipes, which may sound "weird" but according to taste testers are absolutely tops. Tasters never suspected deceptive ingredients were hidden within the foods.

UNBELIEVABLE BROWNIES

Stir together in bowl: 15-ounce brownie mix, water, oil, and egg as specified on package label
¼ cup Great Northern beans
Pour mixture into greased 8-inch square pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 30-35 minutes, until brownies bounce back when touched. It's wise to begin to check doneness after 20 minutes, because of variations among different brands.

½ cup semi-sweet chocolate morsels, melted
½ teaspoon butter, melted
Remainder of Great Northern beans
½ teaspoon vanilla
1½ teaspoon milk

Dietz said that lumps add interest to the brownies. People think the lumps are nuts. Brownies keep in refrigerator for three months.

MEATBALLS WITH A PLUS

Thaw, drain, squeeze dry, chop 10-ounce package frozen spinach
Combine spinach with:
1 pound lean ground beef
1 slice bread, crumbled
2 eggs
¼ cup shredded parmesan cheese
Salt and pepper
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ cup finely chopped onion
1 large clove garlic, minced

"Deception is at work in these foods that are not quite what they seem to be," said Frances Dietz, freelance home economist.

Shape into 14-16-inch meatballs. Cook by favorite method. Serve as is or use in meatball sandwich, in tomato sauce or shape into small hors d' oeuvres.

FRANCIE'S FRUIT SMOOTHIE

8-ounces vanilla yogurt
8-ounces tofu
3 cups cantaloupe chunks or other fruit
¼-1 cup skim milk
6 tablespoons oatmeal
6 tablespoons honey
½ teaspoon cinnamon
2-3 teaspoons vanilla
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
Chill for 30 minutes, then whirl until smooth and creamy. Makes about 8 cups.

MIDDLE EASTERN MYSTERY PIE

Puree 14-ounce can Great Northern beans
Add and process only until smooth:
2 tablespoons flour
2 eggs
⅔ cup evaporated milk
1 tablespoon butter, softened
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
⅔ cup sugar
½ cup coconut
Pour mixture into pastry-lined pan. Bake at 400 degrees for 10 minutes, then at 350 degrees for 20-25 minutes until firm when shaken and knife inserted near center comes out clean.

CRANBERRY ONION RELISH

16-ounce can whole berry cranberry sauce
½ cup dried cranberries
½ cup onion
½ teaspoon ground coriander
3 cloves garlic
Refrigerate at least one hour. Makes about 3 cups relish.

ENRICHED MEATLOAF

Cook in covered pan, until tender, about 20 minutes:
1 cup water
Drain lentils and combine with approximately
3-ounces tofu
¼ cup garden salsa
Blend in:
½ pound ground beef
Salt and pepper to taste
1 slice bread, crumbled
Shape into a loaf; bake in ungreased pan at 350 degrees about 45 minutes to internal temperature of 160 degrees. Makes 4-5 servings.

CARAMELIZED APPLE OMELET

Melt together in skillet:
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons brown sugar
Add:
1 large apple
Dash each of nutmeg and cinnamon
1 tablespoon raisins
Cook slowly for 5-10 minutes, stirring occasionally, until tender. Keep warm.

Prepare 2 or 3 two-egg omelets; fill each with apple mixture. Sprinkle each with a dusting of confectioners' sugar. Serve with a dab of sour cream and slices of apple.

TOFU TWICE-BAKED POTATOES

Cut in half:
1 large baked potato
Scoop out center of potato, leaving a wall about ¼-inch thick. Combine potato pulp with:
4-ounces tofu
1 tablespoon grated parmesan cheese
1 green onion, chopped
½ teaspoon horseradish
Salt and pepper to taste
Milk, if necessary for consistency
Beat with electric mixer until smooth. Fill potato shells with mixture; brush with melted butter.

Bake at 400 degrees in upper third of oven for 10-15 minutes or until top is lightly browned. Makes 1-4 servings.

Leading New York Times Health Reporter Helps Debunk Anti-Milk Myths

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — A recent article in The New York Times by Jane Brody, recognized as the nation's most influential food and health writer, defended milk against headline-grabbing gimmicks by anti-dairy activists.

Brody's article discredited the Physicians Committee for Responsible Medicine (PCRM) claims against milk's health benefits by quoting sound, third-party nutrition research — much of which was supplied by the dairy farmer-funded National Dairy Council® (NDC). The article outlined current myths regarding milk, including its role in relationship to heart disease, cancer and diabetes, and provided scientific evidence that firmly reinforced milk's position as the beverage for good health.

The impact of The New York Times article cannot be overstated, according to Cindy Weimer, spokesperson for the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program. "Through the checkoff promotion programs, we've worked hard to serve as a major dairy and nutrition resource by providing nutrition and health writers such as Jane Brody with sound, science-based nutrition information."

'Cityscapes' Display Is A HorticulturalFirst For Pequea Ag Science Students

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

KINZERS (Lancaster Co.) — It has a brick grill, a bench to sit on, is surrounded by flowers, and you can watch the city in the distance.

(No, it's not the balcony of a Park Avenue penthouse apartment or a corner suite at the Rittenhouse.)

For the first time in their history, going by shear planning, creativity, and wits, Pequea Valley High School students are planning (as one famous TV personality used to say) "a big show, a really big show," with their horticultural display at this year's Farm Show in Harrisburg.

The display, measuring 15 feet wide by 10 feet deep in the Family Living Section of the Farm Show, if approved, could showcase the work of horticultural students from the school.

The theme "cityscapes" was chosen, noted Clair Witwer, ag science instructor at the high school. "Ours is a rooftop garden," he said as he laid down an architectural rendering drawn by Pequea Valley High School students.

The plans include a display featuring a brick grill measuring 27 inches square. "You can't fire it up, of course," said Witwer. The display will feature a fountain with annuals placed around it on a wooden deck.

The display will also feature a conifer and raised planter, iron railing, a four-foot bench, a table measuring 20 square inches, herb garden, social area, and other amenities.

"And this was our backup plan," said Witwer. "Our original plan was even neater."

The students, with help from electronic library resources and the Internet, checked out books such as "Balcony of Roof Gardening," "Small Yard," "Truly Tiny Gardens," "Container Gardens," and others to learn how to put it together.

The project involves the students in a way that allows them to project their classroom living to visitors from the city to the Farm Show.

FFA Discover the Power

The greenhouse is used for propagating landscape and floriculture material. Some material has been planted at the school, along with landscaping done professionally.

The Farm Show project calls for annuals. The class has planted many flowers, including carnations, Alyssum, Sage, Salvia, marigolds, Celosia, and Balsam. Alyssum is arrayed on 288-plug trays. Bigger seedlings are arrayed in 72-plug trays.

Rather than simply learning about fungus in the classroom, Celli believed it was important for students to see how the material grew outside.

Healthy Practices For The Holiday Season

Get Outside For Some Fresh Air And Exercise

"There's no such thing as bad weather, only inadequate clothing" that's what they say in Sweden. They take their children outside to play summer and winter — even in subzero temperatures — and the children are healthier for it!

Children need fresh air and vigorous exercise every day. They can't get either one if they stay inside all day. Most of us keep our homes tightly closed during the winter months to save on energy costs, and the air inside becomes stale. Getting outside for some fresh air renews vigor, clears the brain, and helps children function better.

Exercise has the same effect as the blood reaches our brains more quickly and clears the system. Children eat better, sleep better, and think better when they get adequate fresh air and exercise. Children don't get sick from being outside in cold weather — they get healthy. The illness comes from viruses and bacteria, which are spread much more easily when children are inside all day in close contact with one another.

One of these days, when it's cold or rainy and you're cooped up at home, check it out for yourself. Put on whatever you need to keep warm and dry and go outside and take a walk. I guarantee you'll feel better afterwards.

Be Cautious In Decorating Your Home With Holiday Plants

They can provide a festive atmosphere but many plants are also a danger to curious children and pets that may nibble upon them. Refer to the following list of poisonous greens when decorating spaced that are accessible and highly utilized by children and pets:

- Holly — the leaves are very toxic and eating 20 percent to 30 percent of the berries can be fatal to a small child.
- Ivy — can cause diarrhea, convulsions, and in some cases, cause death when eaten in large quantities.
- Mistletoe — leaves and berries, when eaten may cause a drop in blood pressure, plus a slow down in the heartbeat.
- Christmas Rose — has a white flower which can cause nausea, diarrhea and a slow or weak heartbeat when eaten.
- Jerusalem Cherry — with its small cherry tomato — like berries, can cause a slowing of the heart rate accompanied by a fall in blood pressure.
- Yew — generally grows outside but it is often brought inside for a decorative trim; has fatal berries and leaves when eaten by people and animals.
- Poinsettia — has a poisonous reputation, but it is one of the least toxic holiday plants.

If you think your child has eaten a poisonous plant, and you perceive it to be a life-threatening emergency, call 911 immediately. In other cases, call your family physician or the Central PA Poison Control Center@ 1-800-521-6110. The Poison Control Center is staffed 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. The center will also respond to inquires about poisoned pets if you cannot reach your local veterinarian.

In either case, should you decide to go to an appropriate medical facility for help. Bring a sample of the plant with you.

Adjust Your Expectations And Concentrate On Enjoyable "Moments"

Every year we get so excited about our upcoming holidays, but somehow it never quite lives up to our great expectations. The cookies didn't get baked, the flight was delayed or cancelled, the kids squabbled over the gifts, and old grievances got rehashed.

Rather than struggling endlessly to achieve a "perfect" holiday celebration, why not modify your mental picture to more closely resemble the way it really is? Without sacrificing the spirit of the season, try to get rid of some of the excess by simplifying your plans. Get rid of the busyness and clear the way for more relaxing time to be together with family and friends. For example, instead of worrying about the cookies you didn't get baked, how about taking the kids to the bakery and letting them pick out their own favorites?

Replace disappointments with a sense of humor. Don't obsess about the off-kilter tree or the things that don't go right. Have a good laugh about it and embrace the season as your own unique and special celebration; it may not be "perfect" but then neither are we.

Another tip is to negotiate outside commitments. The kids are coming home from college and want to catch up on sleep after exams, and then to race around seeing their local friends. You want to spend time with them and also to have them join you on visits to or with the extended family. Before they arrive home, strike a compromise about how many days and which days they'll be guaranteed undisturbed time — whether for sleeping or visiting with their friends. In exchange, they agree to cooperatively accompany you on a specified number of outside visits and to spend a specific amount of quiet time with "just the family."

Most important of all, we need to remind ourselves to "love the ones we're with" — to paraphrase a favorite old song. Whatever the state of our holiday plans and festivities, we need to find the peace and joy in the moment, just as it is. Despite burnt dinners, broken toys, and the squabbles that are a part of life with children and an extended family, embrace the day and those who share it with you.

You Ask ... You Answer

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know who to ask for answers.

"You Ask—You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and Answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask—You Answer, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Attention: Lou Ann Good.

Or, you may e-mail questions and answers to lgood.eph@lnpnews.com

Please clarify what question you are answering when responding.

Do not send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a reply. If we receive the answer, we will publish it as soon as possible. Please include your phone number because we sometimes need to contact the person to clarify details. We will not publish your phone number unless you request it.

Ruth writes that another way to make toast is to place in beneath an oven broiler or stick a slice of bread on a long handled fork and hold it over the open burner of the wood stove.

ANSWER — Thomas Stackhouse, Severn, Md., wanted the name of a person or business that deals in antique cookstoves and parlor heaters. A reader writes that Lehman's in Ohio has them. Phone for catalog (330) 857-5757 or Fax (330) 857-5785.

ANSWER — Mrs. LeRoy Hoover, Morgantown, wrote that she has older magazines free to whoever can use them if they pay postage. Thanks to Catherine Durling who suggests she donates the magazines to local nursing homes, hospitals, or correction/prison facilities.

Biting And Sharing Workshop

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.) — If you have ever taken care of a child then you will know why "Biting and Sharing" are the topics covered in December's Better Kid Care videoconference.

The Penn State Cooperative Extension workshop for parents and child care providers takes place on Thursday, Dec. 7 from 7-9 p.m. at the Extension meeting room, basement of the Wayne County Courthouse, Honesdale.

Debra Bryant, Penn State Cooperative Extension family living agent in Wayne County, says "biting and sharing are two of the most troublesome behaviors a child care provider or parent has to deal with when caring for young children." During the workshop child care providers and parents will learn:

- Ways to stop biting.
- How to discuss the issue with the parents of both children involved.
- The in-and-outs of helping children learn to share.

"As adults we need to understand why young children bite. Once we know why a child is biting, we can take steps to prevent it," Bryant adds. Besides hurting another person, there is also risk of disease being spread when one child bites another child.

The "Biting and Sharing" workshop is part of a statewide Better Kid Care child care provider training program presented by Penn State Cooperative Extension and partially funded by the Pennsylvania Department of Public Welfare, and the Pennsylvania Child Care/Early Childhood Development Training System.

Child care providers can receive two DPW training credits for participating in the workshop. Continuing Education Credits (CEUs) are also available.

For more information on the program, support materials and other services from "Better Kid Care," call Debra Bryant at (570) 253-5970 X 239 or visit the Better Kid Care web site at www.betterkidcare.psu.edu.

There is a $2 charge for the program and registration is required. To register, call Wayne County Cooperative Extension at (570) 253-5970 X 239.

Late Fall A Good Time To Get Bats Out Of Your Belfry

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Late fall or early spring — after bats enter caves to hibernate — is a good time to bat-proof your attic, according to wildlife biologists in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"By sealing holes in your attic from October to April, you can prevent bats from re-entering your house in the spring," says Gary San Julian, professor of wildlife resources. "Within that time frame, you don't have to worry about sealing bats inside."

The bats that live in houses — the little brown bat and big brown bat — once roosted in hollow trees. But after early settlers wiped out large tracts of forests, these 'house bats" moved their roosts into hot attics, which act as incubators for their growing pups.

Although people often aren't thrilled about sharing their living quarters with bats, bats make good neighbors. One little brown bat can eat 600 mosquitoes per hour, and big brown bats eat many agricultural pests.

"If you see bats flying around your neighborhood at night, they're doing you a great service," says Margaret Brittingham, associate professor of wildlife conservation. "They're eliminating a lot more insects than that bug zapper you have out back. They also help us to reduce our use of insecticides."

If you're not sure if bats are sharing your domain, San Julian suggests looking for bat droppings in your attic. Bats make dry, black droppings the size of rice grains, filled with shiny insect wings. If you find large accumulations of bat droppings, you probably house a summer maternity colony — a roost where female bats gather to raise their pups.

Because house bats have only one or two pups each year, protection of maternity colonies is important for their survival, says Brittingham. Destroying just one maternity colony can have a long-term impact on the populations of both bats and insects in a local area.

So what should you do if you find yourself with these guests? First look for areas in your attic where bats can get through, says Brittingham. Bats enter through spaces where joined materials have pulled away. They often get through louvered vents with loose screening, roof peaks, dormer windows or areas where flashing has pulled away from the roof or siding. "Bats can crawl through holes the size of a quarter," she says.

To cover louvered vents or large gaps and cracks, use window screening or hardware cloth. Fill smaller cracks with expanding foam insulation or caulking compound.

"When bat-proofing, timing is crucial," adds Brittingham. "Never seal holes May through September, because you can trap the females and their pups inside."

After sealing your attic, Brittingham suggests providing a bat box near your house as an alternative roost. "Bats are very site-faithful," she says. "They tend to come back to the same place year after year. With a bat box, the bats still have a safe place to raise their pups, and you get the bats out of your house — while still benefiting from their insect control."

For more information about bats and bat-proofing, as well as detailed instructions on building bat boxes, see the Penn State College of Agricultural Sciences publication, "A Homeowner's Guide to Northeastern Bats and Bat Problems." Single copies are available free of charge from your county Penn State Cooperative Extension office, or from the College of Agricultural Sciences Publications Distribution Center (call 814-865-6713 or visit the World Wide Web at www.pubs.aginfo.psu.edu).

Long-term Study Reaffirms Lean Red Meat A Part Of Healthy Diet

CHICAGO, Ill. — Continued research confirms that including lean red meat in a heart-healthy diet can positively impact blood cholesterol levels and actually help individuals follow the diet with better long-term compliance. The recently published research looked at the impact of lean red and white meat on blood cholesterol levels.

In essence, the consumption of lean red meat or lean white meat over an extended period of time is similarly effective in reducing "bad" cholesterol and raising "good" cholesterol concentrations in those people with elevated cholesterol levels.

The study "Incorporation of Lean Red Meat into a National Cholesterol Education Program Step I Diet: A Long-Term, Randomized Clinical Trial in Free-Living Persons with Hypercholesterolemia" appeared in the June 2000 issue of the Journal of the American College of Nutrition.

The results of the study showed that both lean meat sources lowered the bad and raised the good cholesterol, according to researchers. Total and low-density lipoprotein (LDL) cholesterol the bad cholesterol decreased for the duration of the study. In both groups, high-density lipoprotein cholesterol levels (HDL) the good cholesterol increased. Combined, these favorable changes in blood cholesterol levels could lead to a reduction in coronary heart disease (CHD) risk.

This study was designed to determine the long-term (two 36-week phases) effects of lean red meat (beef, veal and pork) compared to lean white meat (poultry and fish) consumption on lipoprotein concentrations in free-living hypercholesterolemic subjects men and women with LDL cholesterol levels between 130 and 190 milligrams per deciliter (mg/dL) and triglyceride levels of less than 350 mg/dL consuming a National Cholesterol Education Program (NCEP) Step I diet.

This research results from both 36-week treatment phases reaffirms the findings of the first phase of the study in the June 1999 issue of the Archives of Internal Medicine "Comparison of the Effects of Lean Red Meat vs. Lean White Meat on Serum Lipid Levels Among Free-living Persons With Hypercholesterolemia" which concluded that a diet including six ounces of lean red meat consumed five or more days a week can favorably impact blood lipid levels and thereby may reduce the risk of CHD.

"This study is the largest and longest in providing evidence that the case against lean red meat has been misrepresented. It clearly shows that a heart-healthy diet containing up to six ounces of lean red meat can positively impact blood cholesterol levels," says Dr. Michael H. Davidson, M.D., F.A.C.C., Chicago Center for Clinical Research, and one of the lead researchers of the study.

The study, funded by beef checkoff dollars, was conducted by the Chicago Center for Clinical Research, The Johns Hopkins University Lipid Clinic and the University of Minnesota Hospital and Clinics. The three-site study compared the long-term effects on cholesterol concentrations of incorporating lean red or lean white meat into a National Cholesterol Education Program (NCEP) Step I diet among men and women with elevated blood cholesterol levels.

One hundred forty five men and women, ranging in age from 18 to 75 years, with mild to moderate blood cholesterol levels completed both phases of the 72-week study. For the first 36-week phase, half of the group derived 80 percent of their meat intake from lean red meat sources (beef, veal or pork), while the other half derived it from lean white meat sources (fish, poultry). After a four-week washout period of free meat selection, the groups switched meat sources for the last 36-week phase.

"Clinical studies have confirmed that lean beef is interchangeable with lean chicken and fish with regard to its influence on blood cholesterol levels. This study reaffirmed clinical studies' findings, but in a free-living environment that allowed individuals the flexibility to consume lean red meat according to their own schedules and taste preferences," states Dr. Davidson.

"Since lean cuts of red meat are now readily available to consumers, eliminating lean red meat is unnecessarily restrictive and advising against consumption may actually negatively impact long-term dietary compliance, thus increasing cholesterol levels," says Peter O. Kwiterovich, M.D., The Johns Hopkins University Lipid Clinic. "For those individuals at risk for coronary heart disease, consuming lean red meat is not only acceptable, it encourages compliance to a heart-healthy diet," says Dr. Davidson.

According to health professionals, lean red meat can be easily incorporated into the diet, as there are a variety of lean cuts available in the meat case. Eight cuts of beef fall within the strict guidelines governing the "lean" designation as outlined in the 1990 Nutrition Labeling and Education Act.

On average, seven of the cuts eye round, top round, round tip, top sirloin, bottom round, top loin, and tenderloin have 6.2 grams of total fat and 2.3 grams of saturated fatty acids per three-ounce cooked serving. The eighth cut flank steak has 8.6 grams of total fat and 3.7 grams of saturated fatty acids per three-ounce cooked serving.

Stream MAP of Pennsylvania

Why every fisherman needs this map

It is estimated that 10% of all the fishermen catch 90% of the fish. Regardless of which group you fall into... there's a sure way to up your odds... simply try new fishing waters. Fish where few fishermen ever fish.

Pennsylvania is loaded with great fishing waters...many of them overlooked. From the Lake Erie tributaries to the Delaware River...thousands of miles of streams, lakes and rivers are now easy-to-locate on one map.

Professor Higbee's® STREAMS

Professor Higbee succeeded in creating a map of the highest detail possible...a map that shows every stream and lake. He painstakingly plotted by hand, the location of 45,000 miles of streams onto a 3 x 5 foot map.

The map sold extremely well -- until it was lost several years later. Incredibly, the printer entrusted with the original drawing and printing plates declared bankruptcy, then carelessly hauled Higbee's 30 years of work to a landfill.

The few remaining dog-eared copies became a prized fisherman's possession. Professor Higbee was offered $400 for one of his last maps. And state agencies were forced to keep their copies under lock and key.

Experts told Professor Higbee that reprints were impossible, because the maps were printed in non-photographic blue.

Then, in 1991, at the age of 91, Howard Higbee's dream came true. Computers made it possible to reprint the map. Holding an updated map, Howard said, "I never thought I'd live to see this day."

RAVE REVIEWS

"It is amazingly detailed and names some creeks in the Mohawk Valley that can't even be found on topographic maps "
John Pitarres
OBSERVER-DISPATCH-Utica

"If you're looking for the most definitive maps ever created depicting every single creek, river, stream, pond and lake then "Professor Higbee's Stream Maps" are without question the finest
Howard Brant
THE NEWARK STAR-LEDGER

"It is in showing where to find out-of-the-way trout streams that makes the map such a treasure to the fisherman
Joe Gorden
TRIBUNE-DEMOCRAT-Johnstown

METZLER SALE

For the second time in four months, a preserved farm in the Lancaster Farmland Trust has sold for more than $1 million.

The 122-acre farm, at 1272 Auction Road, Rapho Township, sold for $1.055 million — nearly $8,650 an acre — Thursday at a public sale of real estate, farm equipment, tools, primitives and household goods held for Richard K. and Reba M. Metzler.

J. Elam King, Rothsville, was the buyer. The sale drew 320 registered bidders.

In July, an 84.5-acre farm in the 300 block of Clay School Road, Clay Township, sold at auction for $1.065 million, or about $12,600 per acre.

Structoglas® Liner Panels for strength and sanitation.

USDA and MID approved Structoglas features an unusually high strength to weight ratio and outstanding chemical resistance.

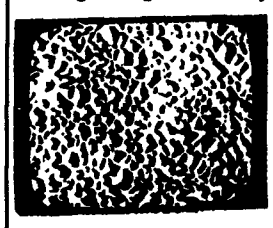
Keep maintenance to a minimum. To clean Structoglas, just steam or wash down. The surface has no crevices to collect dirt, grime or food particles.

Lightweight and easy to install.



Structoglas® Liner Panels... A Clean Favorite For Hog & Dairy Barns, Milk Houses, And Milking Parlors

Hydraulic Push-Off Manure Spreaders

Capacity (ASAE rating)	Model 180	Model 225	Model 275	Model 336
CU. FT. struck level	198	236	270	358
Bushels heaped	285	368	421	465

Hydra-Spread frees you from all the mechanism (and breakdowns) of chain type spreaders. The simple and proven design uses hydraulic power to push the load. (You know how well your loaders works!) Worm gear, apron chains, shafts and sprockets are replaced with a rugged, dependable hydraulic cylinder assembly. Sides and floor are super-slippery, corrosion-proof high density polyethylene. The all-welded unit frame features heavy structural sections for long life.

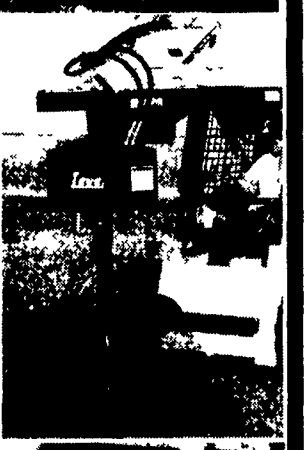
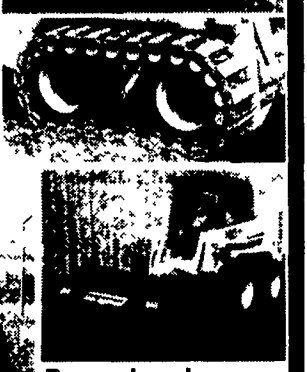
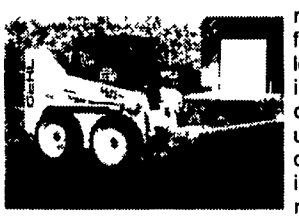
Augers
Hydraulically driven augers provide fast, economical digging. With auger bits available from 6-inch to 36-inch diameters, these augers give you the ability to handle a multitude of tasks Normal digging depth is 48 inches Optional 14- and 24-inch extensions available A 30-inch tree/shrub auger is also available.



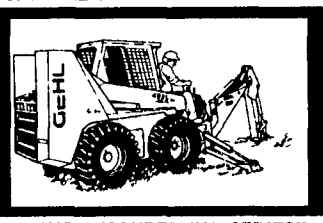
Steel Tracks
For sand, snow or mud, Gehl steel tire tracks get you through the toughest weather and working conditions to get the job done. A patented self-cleaning design keeps mud, ice, rocks and other debris from wedging in the tracks.

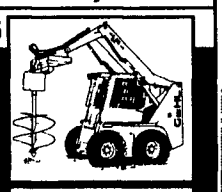


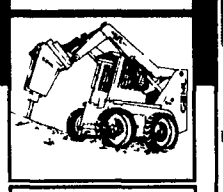
Power Landscape Rake
The perfect tool for landscape contractors. With a unique rake action, these units collect rocks and surface debris, leaving soil in a loose, level condition They remove rocks, sticks and metal from the ground surface, leaving you with several inches of loose, relatively debris-free soil. Their unique action will also dethatch tired turf, leaving the surface ready to re-seed.

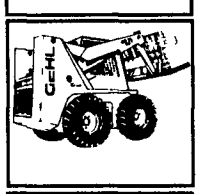


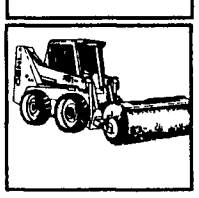
THE ALL-NEW SL 4635 & 4835











GEHL'S EXPANDED "35 SERIES"
Now More Versatile Than Ever!

Gehl's all-new "35 Series" line offers the most advanced design in skid loader history. Now with increased lift and unsurpassed visibility, plus more power, they handle a broad range of applications. The line includes two new models – the SL 4635 and 4835. Highly maneuverable with exceptional stability, they get the job done in tight confines. Like all "35 Series" skid loaders, they offer built-in features for easy maintenance and user comfort Reliable and efficient, Gehl will match your skid loader needs

GET PRECISE APPLICATION CONTROL

New Holland side-delivery spreaders provide the most material control. Whether you're light top dressing, laying down a heavy layer, or anything in between, the Model 3110 puts the right amount of material right where you need it.

- Handles a wide variety of material – slurry, gutter material, cow manure, even poultry litter.
- V-tank design delivers material to the auger fast.
- Heavy-duty round-core auger produces less drag.
- Double-acting hydraulic cylinder moves auger up and down to keep material flowing.
- Hydraulic gate and specially designed expeller give precise application control.
- Backed by a 10-year warranty against tank rust-through.

See us for all your spreader needs.
New Holland Box Spreaders also in stock.

The Performance, Power

"In one of our low-lying fields, the water was staying on top and not getting through the hardpan and into the shale. We had about an 18" barrier to get through, so we ran the DMI Ecolo-Til 2500 subsoiler and shattered that barrier. That land is really productive now, where it wasn't before."

Donald Burkholder ~ Pleasant Acre Farms • Bernville, PA

Donald Burkholder farms around 550 acres in some of Berks County's toughest soil. Beneath the topsoil lies a clay hardpan plus a layer of shale underneath. "When we started subsoiling that land we got down and broke the hardpan, and we were bringing 2 foot hunks of clay and ground up, and that let the water drain down from the top," says Donald.

The DMI Ecolo-Til 2500 aggressively twists and rolls the soil while laterally fracturing the hardpan. This provides excellent fracture of compaction to increase water absorption and air exchange for better nutrient flow up and down the soil profile and root system.

"We have some nice fields around here, but in between those nice fields are a lot of wet, low land areas, where if we didn't run the DMI, the land would be too wet to use. I think the DMI is the best-built subsoiler there is, and it does a really good job... it is impressive," says Donald.

And when it comes to getting top-notch service and parts support for his DMI Ecolo-Til 2500, Donald turns to Hoober. "I've been dealing with them for about 15 years, and I have always gotten good service and good equipment from them because they want to satisfy the customer. They have good, honest people and I've always appreciated them - I haven't bought a product from Hoober that didn't work out for me."

Call a Hoober salesman today for all your DMI needs.

With the NDE Vertical Mixer, you won't watch your feed nutrients blow away Cut your baled hay or baled silage fresh each day right in the mixer! The NDE Vertical mixer will cut large or small, round or square bales Then add the other ingredients your ration calls for

The NDE Vertical Mixer will give your cattle a TRUE TMR that is light and fluffy, and truly palatable, no matter what you add to it by-products, commodities, long-stemmed hay silage grain

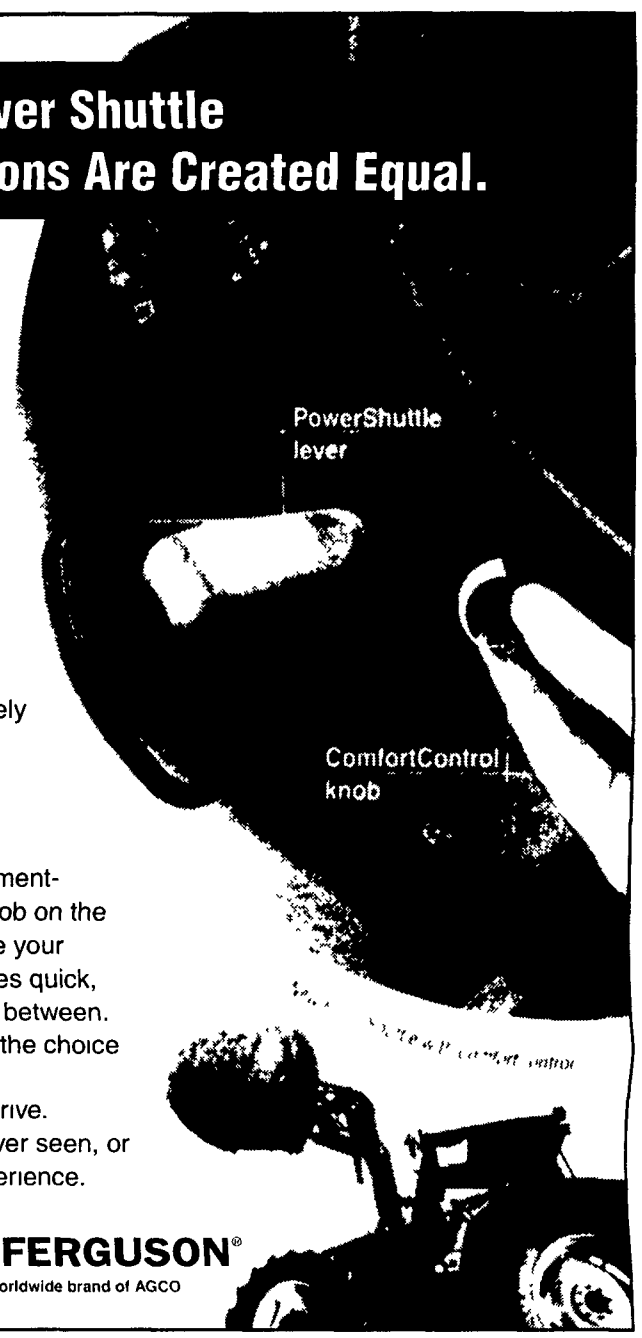
Not All Power Shuttle Transmissions Are Created Equal.



Only MF 4200 Series Tractors Offer PowerShuttle Transmissions With ComfortControl™.

Climb aboard a 55-99 hp MF 4200 Series tractor, and you're uniquely and completely in control of shuttle operations. With ComfortControl, you determine the rate of PowerShuttle engagement-simply by turning a knob on the steering column. Make your forward/reverse shuttles quick, gentle or anywhere in between. With ComfortControl, the choice is yours.

See us for a test drive. Nothing else you've ever seen, or felt, will equal the experience.

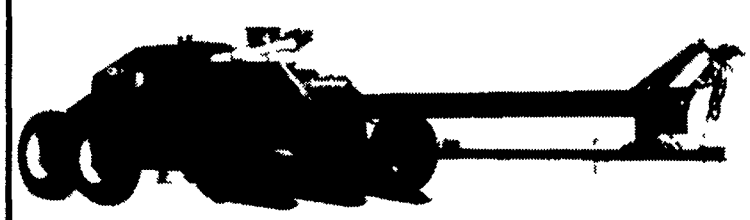
GEHL

YOUR LIVESTOCK IMPLEMENT LINE

BETTER NUTRITION & PEAK FORAGE HARVESTING CAPACITY!

6, 7, & 9 Ft. Hay Pickup Attachment Available



Increase Production & Profits with a Gehl Crop Processor™ Better feed starts with better harvesting. That's what you get with a Gehl crop processing forage harvester. First to put crop-processing rolls in a pull-type forage harvester, Gehl remains the leader with the original Model 1275 and the all-new Model 1075.

- HIGH-SPEED GROOVED ROLLS crack kernels, break-up the cob and shred stalk material
- BENEFITS include increased milk production and improved herd health.
- MODEL 1275 is today's top-capacity pull-type forage harvester, handling up to 300 PTO horsepower.
- NEW MODEL 1075 handles up to 225 PTO horsepower
- EXCLUSIVE AUTOMAX™ LOAD MANAGEMENTS SYSTEM helps boost capacity.

The #1 Name In Feedmaking

Gehl Mix-All® portable grinder-mixers have been leading the industry for over 35 years. Now available with Gehl's famous hammermill or a commercial-grade roller mill to produce the best possible feed for your livestock.

- Total hydraulic control - Self-contained hydraulic system allows infinite speeds to power the discharge conveyor, unloading auger and in-feed attachments
- Remote controls - Operate the unloading conveyor from the tractor seat or from the rear of the machine.
- Electronic scales - For precise ration weighing.
- Customize your machine - With a wide variety of options and attachments.

The Right Tractor for YOU

The world is changing at an astonishing pace. Some stand still, but successful people respond, adapt and change along with it. New Holland is changing, growing and creating solutions that match your changing needs. Take a look:

Any job. Any time. Anywhere.

Hard work demands productive, dependable equipment, like the New Holland Super Boom™ skid steer. Super Boom has unbeatable stability and visibility, faster travel speeds, superior dump height and reach, greater bucket and lift capacity and more attachments than anyone.

Stop in today and see what Super Boom can do for you.

POWER without Hesitation

Your job's tough enough without fighting your transmission. But with the New Holland powershift transmission, shifting is as smooth as the automatic transmission of a car. Forward-reverse shuttling is smooth and clutch-free. Check out the powershift transmission on New Holland 92- to 135-PTO hp TM tractors or 145- to 210-PTO hp 70 Series tractors.

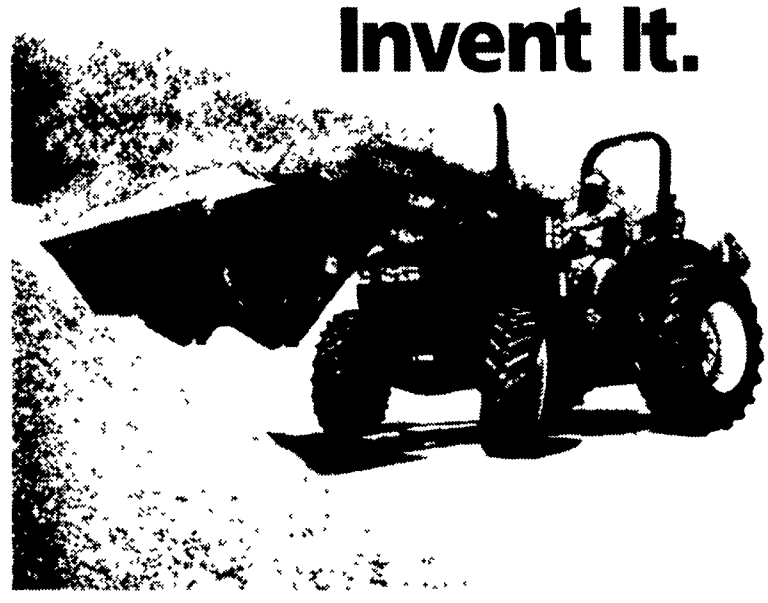
The Best Way to Predict the Future? Invent It.



New Holland is creating the right solutions to match your changing needs. If you need to move round bales, pallets of feed or loads of manure faster, we have the solution for you – a 42- to 62-PTO hp New Holland TN tractor. The exclusive TN electro-hydraulically controlled power shuttle lets you shift from forward to reverse with the touch of a finger. Faster cycle times means your shuttling goes even faster.

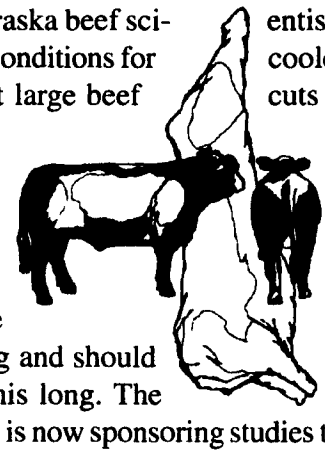
BEEF TIPS

Aging of beef helps tenderness; study reveals more



University of Nebraska beef scientist Chris Calkins is studying the ideal conditions for cooler aging of beef. Calkins found that large beef cuts aged at 30 degrees F, took 15 days to reach the same tenderness of beef aged at 38 degrees F for 11-12 days. Aging worked best for vacuum packed primal cuts. Smaller steaks and hamburger are not generally packaged for aging and should not be kept in refrigerators for this long. The American Simmental Association is now sponsoring studies to identify through genetics the sires that produce the most tender and tasty meat.

Our John Deere 9600 4WD Contour Master combine with low engine/separator hours and large threshing and cleaning capacity will put more clean grain in the tank and leave less behind in the field. Chopper and chaff spreader will also distribute crop residue evenly allowing your soil to dry out and warm up faster in the spring which will allow you a head start next year.
